

Gigantic Rail Strike Called for December 5; Raises Rejected

Order Affects 350,000 Men in Train Operation

Walkout Awaits 30-Day Interval After Board's Report.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, announced tonight that his organization and the four other big operating unions would call 350,000 men out on strike December 5 to enforce demands for a 30 per cent wage increase.

Leaders of the other operating unions agreed that there would be a strike, but they declined to say when. Alvan Johnston, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said additional details had to be worked out. T. C. Cashen, president of the Switchmen's Union of America, said he "wouldn't be surprised if December 5 was the date." Whitney insisted it would be December 5.

Boost Rejected.
Besides the trainmen, engineers and switchmen, Whitney said the Order of Railway Conductors and Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen would go out on that date.

Four hundred general chairmen of these groups—the key workers in the nation's railroad transportation system—"flatly rejected" earlier today a 7-12 per cent pay boost recommended by the President's emergency fact-finding board and urged their leaders to execute a strike order authorized by the membership September 5.

The board's report to the President was the last process provided by the railway labor act to forestall a strike. The law requires, however, that 30 days must elapse between the time the report was made and the time a walkout actually begins.

Right on Minute.
"The strike will be called at 1:45 p. m., eastern standard time, December 5," Whitney said. "Exactly 30 days to the minute from the time the board handed its report to the President."

He said there were a few changes to be made in the strike details which were circulated in September, but that most of the strike machinery could be put into operation immediately.

The fact-finding board has adjourned, and its chairman, Wayne Lyman Morse, said it would not reconvene unless called by Mr. Roosevelt and that "the railway case now rests entirely in the hands of the President."

Representatives of the carriers announced today that they would accept the board's recommendations, even though they were "disappointed" in them.

Comment Withheld.
Spokesmen for the 900,000 members of the 14 non-operating brotherhoods have refrained from public comment on the fact-finding board recommendations and said there would be none until a meeting of their 1,554 general chairmen here next Wednesday.

The fact-finding board recommended an increase of 7-12 per cent for the operating men who had asked a flat 30 per cent boost, their lowest paid men now receiving $5.06 a day. The board recommended an average increase of 13-12 per cent for the non-operating men who had asked an increase of 30 to 40 cents an hour over current rates of 35 to 85 cents an hour. Other recommendations by the board were for one week paid vacations for non-operating employees and 7-12 cents an hour increase for Railway Express Agency employees.

Negotiations and mediation failed to settle the dispute and the fact-finding board was created after the unions authorized a strike.

Thompson Calls Eight Points Of Atlantic Charter a 'Fiasco'

By DOROTHY THOMPSON.

In the last article I said that the weakest spot in the whole German setup is the Hitler political regime, while the strongest is the German army.

Yet, by point eight in the Atlantic charter, which is at least Mr. Roosevelt's statement of peace aims, we united the German army and the German people behind the Hitler regime more effectively than Hitler himself could have done. We gave everybody in Germany a reason for fighting this war to its bitterest and most total conclusion.

For point eight says that "pending the establishment of a wider and more permanent system of general security, the disarmament of such nations (as threaten or may threaten aggression outside of their frontiers) is essential."

That means the unilateral disarmament of Germany. The war is, in that point, no longer addressed against the Nazis, but against Germany. The proposal is utterly to destroy the German army in a world seething with hatred.

I believe with Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt that no peace can

Senate Vote Approves Arming U. S. Merchant Ships, Sending Them Into Belligerent Areas

Labor Groups Must Clean Up, Ramspeck Says

Warns of Rising Tide of Sentiment Against 'Subversive Minority.'

Organized labor must purge from its ranks a "subversive" minority which is trying to "sell you out" for personal gain, or it will soon face legislative restrictions that will set back the labor movement for many years, Congressman Robert Ramspeck declared last night.

Warning of "a rising tide of public sentiment caused by the misconduct of certain leaders and the faithlessness of others," Ramspeck said that unless unions "clean house" voluntarily, regulation by law is inevitable.

"The public has no patience with strikes that impede our production of materials needed for national defense," he told a group of government employees in the Allied Federal Council, meeting at the American Legion hall here.

Criminals in Office.
In a speech he said was directed to all concerned with labor, Ramspeck said the public cannot understand "why you permit persons with known criminal records to hold high office in your ranks" or "why violence and 'strong-arm' methods are sometimes used to force men to join unions."

"They (the public) want you to expel from your ranks all persons of a subversive nature," he added.

Declaring that the nation is "faced with the most critical period in our history," the fifth district congressman warned the labor group that it is not now wise to call any strike "that impedes national defense."

Strikes at Racketeers.
"To do so simply plays into the hands of those who seek your destruction," he asserted.

"The public feels that you are not willing to make your contribution, your part of the sacrifice we must all make, for the national safety."

Ramspeck struck at racketeers, criminals, Communists, and "those who advocate the overthrow of our form of government," which he said make up a "small minority" of the labor group. These must be removed "without delay," he added.

"Unless such changes are made," he continued, "Congress cannot and will not wait much longer for your voluntary action. Legislation of a restrictive nature will be passed. Your movement will be set back for many years. You may never regain some of the privileges you now enjoy."

Public Opinion Rules.
"Our country is ruled by public sentiment. This public attitude is the court of final resort in all matters. No individual group of any kind can escape the inevitable force of public opinion."

"The people of the United States demand fair play. They will brook no interference with the national safety."

Great pressure already has been brought to bear on congress to pass legislation to restrict strikes.

HECTIC HONEYMOON—A leisurely, idyllic honeymoon must be nice but Mr. and Mrs. Walter Winn wouldn't know. This is the way they spent theirs. Walter, an NYA photographer, was called off his wedding trip to photograph the Carolina war maneuvers in company with Authoress Dorothy Dunbar Bromley. His pretty red-headed bride, the former Sara Martin, loyally grabbed the camera case and trotted along, dancing with soldiers while Walter's flashbulbs exploded.

'In Army Now,' Thousands Saddened at Death Is Honeymoon Of Restaurateur 'Ed' Venable

Photographer, Bride Escorted by Camera on Wedding Trip.

With this camera I see wed . . . and with all my flashbulbs I see endow . . . I promise to love and cherish through negatives and glossy prints . . . till a broken lens do us part . . .

Ed, wearing a skull cap because he was subject to colds, presided at the front counter.

Mrs. Venable, plump, blond and adorned with diamonds, looked after the kitchen. I've visited that kitchen as clean as a hospital operating room.

Often, in dull moments, Mrs. Venable would come out—and I hope she will keep on coming out—and slide onto a counter stool and discuss this or that with some customer friend. She didn't have to choose, because all customers were her friends. She was a kind of mother comforter to a lot of lads—old and young. Let's hope she carries on.

When I first knew the Venables, they had a little barbecue pit in their back yard on Gordon street, in West End. They'd bring their barbecue downtown to their restaurant in the Walton building. It was good barbecue.

Center for Politicians.
Long after that, they acquired their Forsyth street place. It was always busy.

Big shots in Atlanta—most of them—come from the farm. They adore hog jowl and cowpaws and good beef and pies.

As a reporter, when I had to look up a prominent politician or office-holder about lunch time, I didn't waste moments calling his office or the clubs. I knew I'd find him at Venable's, absorbing a vegetable plate at counter or table.

House Leaders Are Confident Bill Will Pass

Foreign Policy Opponents Call Action Prelude to War.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The senate voted 50 to 37 tonight to amend the neutrality act so that American ships may mount guns for their protection and sail through any seas and to any ports, including combat zones and the harbors of belligerent nations.

It took this action at the end of a long day and evening of tense and sometimes dramatic debate, which found the opposition to the Roosevelt foreign policy making a last-ditch stand against legislation which it frequently called a prelude to war.

House Confident.
The measure now goes back to the house for action upon highly important and controversial senate amendments. As originally passed by the house, the revision resolution called only for the arming of American ships. Permission to enter combat zones and belligerent ports was added by the senate.

While the house has customarily been less inclined to follow the administration's lead on foreign policy questions, the majority leadership there was confident that it had enough votes to approve the senate changes. Action was planned for Wednesday and, if favorable, it will send the legislation directly to the White House.

The language freezing American shipping of the restrictions on its movements prescribed by the neutrality act proved the most controversial feature of the bill in the senate's debate. By comparison there was relatively little opposition to the ship-arming clause.

Sure War Seen.
The opposition repeatedly and at length contended that permitting American vessels to carry cargoes through strife-infested waters to Great Britain would have only one result—incidents which would surely lead to war.

Administration supporters replied that the whole Roosevelt policy was designed to keep America out of war, and enthusiastically sustain the right of the nation to send its ships wherever

Fair, Colder Weather Is Forecast for Today
Fair and colder weather with possibly frost in the low places is forecast for today.

The temperature will drop to 38 degrees tomorrow, five degrees lower than yesterday's minimum. The frost, it appears, will be the first of the season. The only other frost forecast this fall was made last week and fell through because of clouds and wind.

Generally fair weather is forecast through Wednesday with a "somewhat warmer" temperature after Sunday.

Woman Assessed $1 for Sitting On Coffin and Delaying Burial

A woman alleged to have sat on a coffin for an hour and kept the casket open for a number of years and that her parents and an aunt had been buried there. On the morning of the funeral, the complaint charged, Mr. and Mrs. Waits came to the cemetery and Waits told A. L. Stephens, who was there to direct the digging of the grave, that he was trespassing. Waits is then said to have added that he was going to obtain legal papers to prevent burial at the selected spot.

Later, it was charged, he sent Mrs. Waits back to prevent the burial until he had obtained papers from Justice of the Peace H. A. Godby. By 11:30 the grave was dug and at 12:30 the wooden box in which the casket is placed arrived.

Mrs. Waits, according to the complainants, said that the

Southeast Soon To Be Aided by Power Influx

41,500,000 Kilowatt Hours a Week To Come From Other States.

Power from Virginia to Florida, from Texas to Chicago—a grand total of 41,500,000 kilowatt hours a week—soon will be flowing into the southeast, helping to relieve power shortage caused by mounting needs of defense industries and a prolonged drought.

This huge supply of surplus power from the outside areas will flow into the south over tie-lines or interconnections with the adjoining systems.

The new figure for the power pool, announced last night by J. A. Krug, chief of the OPM power branch, is approximately 10,000,000 kilowatt hours a week more than hitherto thought possible. The increase resulted from final arrangements for power pooling that have been completed.

Utility systems of 10 states are sending their surplus power into the Greenville-Tallahassee tie-line and the Greenville-Tallahassee tie-line—the first results since Thursday's OPM pooling order—showed actual delivery at a rate which fully measures up to the estimate of the OPM engineers.

The actual delivery over these two interconnections, on the basis of the first five hours' operation, is at the rate of over 14 million kilowatt hours per week.

Krug said the total of 41,500,000 kilowatt hours per week might be compared with the highest amount ever brought in before, 27,800,000 kilowatt hours, and with a figure of 30,500,000 kilowatt hours, the amount hitherto regarded as the maximum amount to be brought into the area through the pooling system.

complaint, then sat on the box and demanded that the undertaker's assistant present papers showing that they had a right to conduct a burial at that spot, which she claimed was on land adjoining the cemetery which she and her husband had bought.

Whereupon, the complaint read, the men seized the straps on the box and started to lower it, with Mrs. Waits seated on top, into the grave. Then, it was alleged, Mrs. Waits seized an iron pick and threatened them.

By this time, the funeral services in a near-by church were concluded and the funeral procession continued to the cemetery. The complaint said the burial was held up an hour before Mrs. Waits was persuaded to allow it.

Meanwhile, A. L. Stephens left to procure legal papers to permit the burial and complained he had been kept from attending it.

In court, the Waitses contended the grave had been dug on a plot on their property outside the Godby cemetery.

Decatur city commission last night voted to change the parking limit in the business section from two hours to one hour. Commissioner Homer George reported.

The commission also voted $50,000 toward construction of a new city library on the site of the old Cooper home on Sycamore street. This project has been in process of planning for several months.

When the circus train pulled out in the gray dawn of yesterday morning, it left behind four elephants in a "hospital" tent on the lot. One of them was "Liz," who was dying. Another was "Peggy," seriously ill. Another "Clara." And the fourth was "Palm."

Three times during the night she went down and struggled to her feet again. The last time she fell, they thought she was gone. There was no heart-beat. No sign of breathing. Beside her, a little earlier, "Big Liz" had died, the eighth to go.

"Now 'Palm' makes nine," said Dr. Standish Piper, young Atlanta veterinarian, who for 72 hours had gone without sleep as he doctored the ailing herd. He lay down on a bale of hay and pulled a blanket over him. Jim Reynolds, circus man, lay down. Dutch Grogan curled up in the hay and tried to sleep.

Two hours later Grogan woke. He looked, blinked, rubbed his eyes, and stared, unbelieving. Over in her corner "Palm" swayed on unsteady legs. She was standing up again. She was alive after they had given her up for dead.

Gathered Up Hay. She reached with her trunk and gathered up a little of hay and tossed it over her back—the first normal elephant gesture in hours.

She reached down and fingered a wisp of hay and tried to carry it to her mouth—the first time since her illness she had tried to eat.

Grogan let out a yell. Piper rolled off his bale of hay. Reynolds woke, stared and looked like he was going to cry. Grogan scampered like a rabbit under the walls of the tent.

Thirty minutes later he was back with a big sack full of the finest, juiciest carrots, the greenest, freshest bunch of lettuce he could find.

"Palm" Eats It All. With grimy hands tattooed with stars the tough little roustabout fed "Palm" like a mother feeds her baby, crooning to her while she ate.

And she ate it all. She stayed on her feet until she got ready to lie down for a rest and she got back up again and looked around for more food. Grogan waited on her like a nurse waiting on a millionaire. Every time she lifted her trunk he was beside her, talking low to her, encouraging her to keep up the fight.

Late yesterday it looked as if "Palm" was safe. "Peggy" was nuzzling everybody who got near her, seeking food. "Liz" was gone and "Clara" looked bad.

But "Palm," the gazooney, the baby, was safe and the Doc and Reynolds and Grogan were tickled to death.

Reynolds, counting back, figured that in all 18 elephants had been sickened by the poison—whose origin late yesterday was still unknown. Ten, counting "Palm," had been saved.

Piper Gave Credit. The circus folk give Piper the credit. They've tried to hire him to go along with the circus as the Big Show's vet. But 72 hours of sitting up with a herd of sick elephants has been enough for him. He'll go back to his own practice, on dogs and cats and horses and all.

Whereupon, the complaint read, the men seized the straps on the box and started to lower it, with Mrs. Waits seated on top, into the grave. Then, it was alleged, Mrs. Waits seized an iron pick and threatened them.

By this time, the funeral services in a near-by church were concluded and the funeral procession continued to the cemetery. The complaint said the burial was held up an hour before Mrs. Waits was persuaded to allow it.

Baby Plays With Loaded Gun For an Hour Without Mishap

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—A baby boy played with a loaded .38 caliber revolver for more than an hour today, biting it, beating it against the side of his stroller, and banging it on the floor, before his mother discovered that the weapon wasn't the toy she had thought it was.

Mrs. Ethel Meyers, of Brooklyn, told police the boy, Robert, 2½, left his stroller and followed her into a bank, showing her what she thought was a toy pistol.

Police have the revolver now.

SPAB to Ration 'Critical' Items

Move Is First Step Toward 'All-Out Allocations Program.'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The defense high command committed itself today to an unprecedented policy of rationing "critical" materials to the nation's industry.

Contemplating gradual elimination of the present complicated system of priorities, the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board took its first step toward what it called an "all-out allocations program." It ordered the Office of Production Management to prepare complete reports on the 1942 production programs of each industry.

The priorities system seeks to put "first things first" by giving manufacturers of the most important defense articles first call on "critical" materials, that is, materials of which there is an actual or prospective shortage. It classifies the orders of other manufacturers on a scale of their importance from a defense standpoint.

F. D. R. Urges Speeding Up of Aid to Russia

'Immediate' Lend-Lease Action Asked of Stettinius.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt asked his lend-lease administrator, Edward R. Stettinius Jr., today to work out "as quickly as possible" a program of immediate action to transfer defense supplies to Russia.

This step followed announcement late yesterday that the Soviet Union will obtain $1,000,000,000 in lend-lease assistance.

The President handed this letter to Stettinius at a conference at the White House late today.

"On November 7, 1941, I addressed a letter to His Excellency, President Kalinin, in which I congratulated him on the national anniversary of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and expressed the admiration of the people of the United States for the 'valiant and determined resistance of the army and people of the Soviet Union' and the determination of the United States that the 'sacrifices and sufferings of those who have the courage to struggle against aggression will not have been in vain'."

"In that letter I assured President Kalinin 'of the desire of the government and people of the United States to do everything possible to assist your country in this critical hour.'"

"In accordance with that pledge and pursuant to the power conferred upon me by the lend-lease act, I have today found that the defense of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics is vital to the defense of the United States."

"I therefore authorize and direct you to take immediate action to transfer defense supplies to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics under the lend-lease act, and to carry out the terms of my letter of October 30, 1941, to Premier Stalin."

"I should appreciate it if you would work out as quickly as possible details of this program with representatives of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics."

LeBlanc, who had a world-wide reputation as a pioneer of the detective novel in France, was known as the French Conan Doyle and in one novel pitted his own brain child, Arsene Lupin, against the English novelist's Sherlock Holmes.

First Jaywalking Case Lodged Against Woman. Instead of going to a hospital, Lula Fowler, Negro, of a Clifton road address, who was knocked down by an automobile yesterday at Edgewood avenue and Pryor street, went to police headquarters to face a charge of jaywalking.

The woman was uninjured. Hers was the first case made since Mayor LeCraw ordered police to docket jaywalking charges against pedestrians.

Short-Wave Radio Replaces Old-Fashioned Nurse for Baby

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—A short-wave radio transmitter serves in place of a nursemaid for Dianne Roxas, six months old.

Dianne's parents leave the baby alone in their apartment without the least fear while they visit about the neighborhood, the mother, Mrs. Richard Roxas, says. The transmitter, attached to the baby's crib, picks up the slightest sound the child makes.

The parents take their portable receiver with them and tune in.

Labor Groups Must Clean Up, Ramspeck Says

control labor unions by law, Ramspeck said.

"For generations labor has striven to attain its present position. If it is to be retained, the individual members of local unions must wake up. They must see to it that the labor movement is not destroyed because a few leaders and a small minority fail to do their duty."

He called upon labor union members to "put pressure to work for better conditions."

The congressman prefaced his speech with the statement that he is now on three congressional committees affecting labor, and that his record "indicates my sympathy with the problems of those who earn their daily bread by toil." But, he said, friends of labor, too, should face "the facts, no matter how disagreeable they may be."

Ramspeck said public sentiment is especially strong against stoppages resulting from jurisdictional strife and from "division within the ranks of labor."

"I am often asked why the government can take a young man from his work and make him enter the Army at small pay, but cannot stop industrial workers from striking in national defense plants," he told the group.

Speak Earlier at Emory. "The constitution makes it the duty of citizens to respond to a call for service in the armed forces. It does not give authority for forced labor."

"I doubt if the country is ready for any such drastic action. If we should come to a time when such action is necessary, our country would no longer be the nation of freedom. That is the type of control now practiced in Germany."

After reading from a prepared text, the Decatur congressman spoke extemporaneously, telling the crowd of 250 that "Hitler has created a Frankenstein that would destroy him in two weeks if he tried to change Germany back to a peacetime economy. So the only thing for him to do is to keep pushing on."

He also attacked Wheeler, Lindbergh and Nye for their isolationist policy, adding, "Any man who seeks to block the effectiveness of

Ickes Named Co-ordinator Of Solid Fuels

F. D. R.'s Letter Stresses Need of Adequate Supply.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Harold L. Ickes, only a few days free of the controversial eastern oil "shortage," bounded back into the defense spotlight today as President Roosevelt put in his hands the responsibility of assuring adequate coal to keep armament plants humming and homes warm in the winter.

The President made him the "solid fuels co-ordinator," a post similar to the fuel administrator of World War No. 1, when the nation was put under coal rationing and observed "heatless Mondays."

While Mr. Roosevelt in his letter of appointment made no mention of a possible coal shortage, he did stress that "it becomes increasingly urgent to assure that the supply of solid fuels will be adequate."

Luther Harr, Bituminous Coal Consumers' council, subsequently issued a statement that stocks presently were "above normal" and that "this would seem to indicate that no immediate shortage is likely, although there are certain deficiencies in special industrial uses."

The President told Ickes he would remain the defense petroleum co-ordinator.

While "solid fuels" include coal, coke and other substances, bituminous coal alone is the source of about half of America's energy supply.

Fraud Trial Leaves Steel City Without Mayor or Council

LACKAWANNA, N. Y., Nov. 8.—(AP)—The 25,000 inhabitants of this city that steel built were without a local administration tonight, their mayor and six other officials having resigned shortly before receiving suspended prison terms for conspiracy to defraud.

Floy A. Ray Case Delayed for Week

After Solicitor General John A. Boykin stated in Fulton county superior court yesterday he had information that Miss Floy A. Ray, for many years secretary of the Liebman-Malone Realty Company, had been "led into gambling on the bug by a notorious character," Judge A. I. Etheridge postponed proceedings in her case until 11 o'clock next Friday morning.

Miss Ray was indicted August 1 on five counts involving forgery of the name of Frank Malone, five other counts in connection with the same checks and a charge of embezzling $14,450 of the firm's money.

It was said that Miss Ray, out on bond, had been in Texas and returned to Atlanta last week.

Immediately, citizens looked to Governor Herbert H. Lehman, Democrat, to appoint a new government for Lackawanna, where towering smokestacks belch impressive evidence of national defense effort. The Governor, in New York city, gave no indication when he would act.

Convicted June 30 of padding city WPA pay rolls, Mayor John F. Aszker, three councilmen, a city clerk and the city projects manager were given the suspended sentences by Supreme Court Justice Almon W. Lytle in Buffalo and fined $500 each. A fourth councilman was fined $250.

The sentences and the resignations were deferred until after Tuesday's election to permit payment of salary checks to municipal employees. The next pay rolls, however, are due November 15.

Corporation Counsel Edward Sobolewski said, "It's a novel situation in New York state. There is nothing in the city charter to provide for successors and, meanwhile, there is no mayor, no council, no one in charge."

Political observers expected Mayor-Elect Michael J. Hughes, Democrat, and the newly elected councilmen would be appointed to fill the vacancies until December 31. They assume office January 1.

Lili Damita Seeks To Divorce Flynn

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 7.—(INS).—Charging extreme cruelty, Lili Damita late today filed suit for divorce against Actor Errol Flynn.

Miss Damita, a former film star in her own right, charged that Flynn caused her "grievous mental anguish."

She asked in her suit that a property settlement agreed upon be ratified by the court and that she be awarded custody of their 5-month-old son, Sean.

The romantic screen hero married the French-born actress in Yuma, Ariz., June 19, 1935. They separated last August, according to the actress' complaint. At the time of their separation, Flynn's attorneys declared that he would not contest a divorce action.

Nazi Foes Optimistic as Soviets Begin Drive

Germans Held At Standstill On All Fronts

Russians Seek To Re-open Leningrad-Moscow Railway.

By The Associated Press.
A restrained but nevertheless real optimism for the long pull appeared last night to be running higher among Hitler's great antagonists than at any time in many a weary month, and the immediate position was that the Germans were having the worst of it on the central front and making little progress in the south.

Of Moscow, where the Nazis flatly conceded that they had been brought to a standstill although blaming it on the weather, London reported that general Soviet attacks above the city were rising in power to something approaching a major counter-offensive.

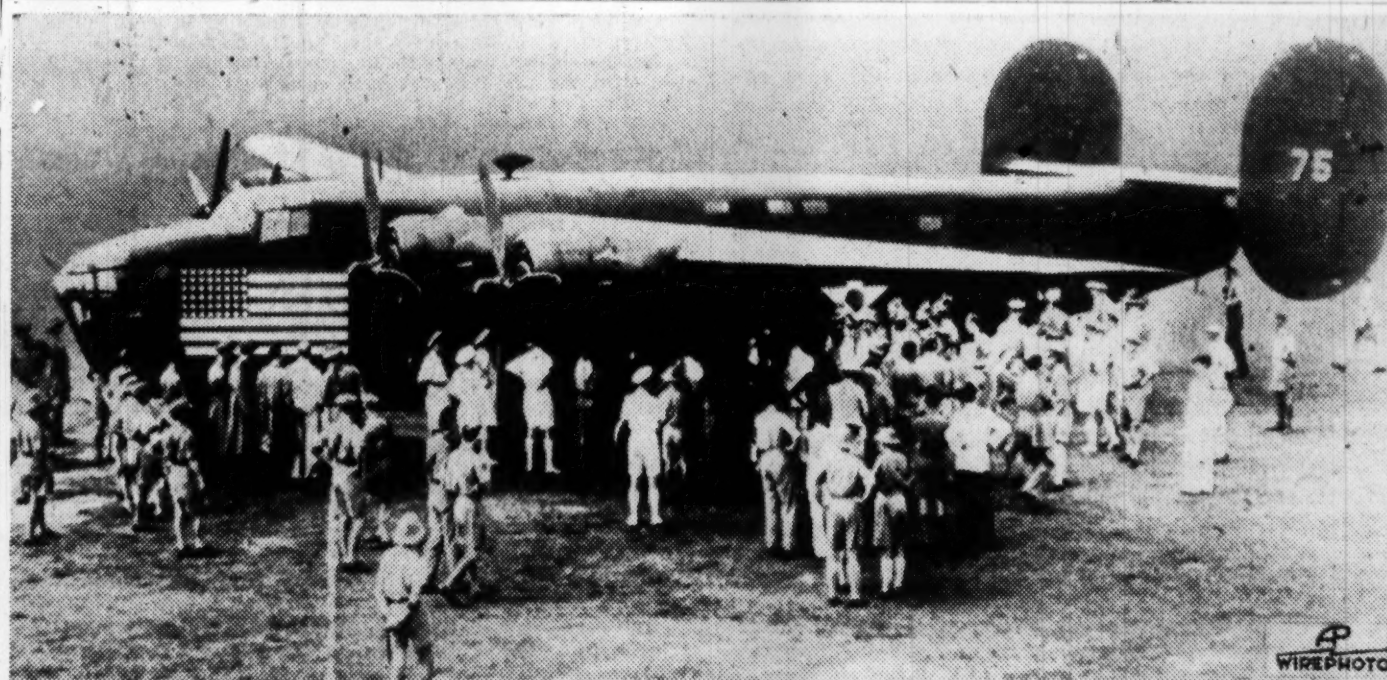

The eventual Russian purpose, said these accounts, was to re-open the Leningrad-Moscow railway. While any such conclusion was still a long way off it did appear from the available reports that the Germans had been thrown back several miles in some sectors and that the Russians had regained a branch railroad near Kalinin, which is about 95 miles northwest of Moscow. The Nazi forward positions were reported under punishing attack in a 30-mile-deep zone running from Kalinin 30 miles down to Volokolamsk.

Red Chances Improve.
In all this area the previously reported withdrawal of the bulk of the German aerial squadrons, all presumably assigned immediately or prospectively to the south, was plainly giving the Russians a better chance than they had had since the main German offensive on Moscow began October 2.

German reports of yesterday stressed the Crimean push on Sevastopol, the main Soviet Black sea naval base, saying that Nazi artillery and dive bombers were beating heavily at the city's approaches.

A strong Russian defense in the lofty Yaila mountains on the southern and eastern ranges of the Crimean peninsula was conceded, although Berlin claimed that German and Rumanian troops had made some gains over almost impassable terrain and against heavy Soviet rear guard action.

Still, nothing was said by the Nazis as to how close they stood either to Sevastopol or to Kerch, the eastern bridgehead to the western Caucasus. No specific advance toward either had been claimed in several days.

WORLD-BIRDING BOMBER—A U. S. Army B24, four-motored bomber, which recently landed safely at San Diego after a trip around the world, is shown here as it reached Singapore. It was carrying the Harriman mission

In the Donets basin, where the Germans apparently have been stalled for many days just short of Rostov on the River Don, the high command claimed "further headway" for German and Italian troops, but again there was nothing specific.

Answering Joseph Stalin's declaration that German casualties were 4,500,000 in killed, wounded or captured, Berlin's military spokesmen went him a good deal better and said that Russian losses were 7,000,000 to 8,000,000 men.

The leaders of the three greatest powers now in action against Germany or associated nations spoke out during the day to lift the spirits of their followers and to declare that a turn in what had so long been a bitter road for the anti-Axis bloc was now visible in the far distance, hard won though it might be.

Churchill Optimistic.
Said Winston Churchill, to the shipping workers of England's Tyneside:

"We have passed through the darkest and more perilous side of this struggle and are once more masters of our own destiny."

Said Joseph Stalin from Moscow, in his second address in as many days:

"The German invaders are straining their last forces. There is no doubt that Germany cannot sustain such a strain for any long time. Another few months, another half-year, one year maybe, and Hitlerite Germany must burst under the weight of her own crimes."

Said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, the leader of China's struggle against Japan:

"This is a very important time in our united struggle. . . . Final victory will depend upon the degree of unity and co-ordination between all our fronts in the world."

Goebbels Melancholy.
Extraordinarily, of all the beligerent spokesmen, it was the German, Paul Joseph Goebbels, who seemed the more nearly melancholy.

The Axis powers, he said in a published article, "are really fighting for bare existence, and the worries and distress which we all must bear in the war would pale in the face of the inferno which would await us if we were to lose."

Hitler's plans, he went on, had "often enough hung on a silken thread," and he added:

"The chance which the German nation possesses is indeed its greatest, but also its last."

THANKSGIVING DAY SET.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 7.—(AP)—This Georgia city will observe Thanksgiving in the regular, old-fashioned November 27 manner, the city council has decided.

Efforts To Alter Price Control Measure Fail

Bill Said Facing Veto by President in Present Form.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Eleventh-hour efforts by administration lieutenants to have the pending price control bill altered before it reaches the house floor apparently failed late today despite authoritative word that the measure faces a presidential veto in its present form.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson and his general counsel, David Ginsburg, called on Representative McCormack, Democrat, Massachusetts, majority leader, and Chairman Steagall, Democrat, Alabama, of the house banking committee, late in the day to discuss the legislation. They were told, it was believed, that little could be done until the house actually began consideration of the measure.

"Misguided" Men

President Roosevelt, speaking before the International Labor Office Conference, gave his solemn pledge that no "misguided" industrialist or labor leader shall defeat America's program of defense or prevail against this nation's "unlimited commitment that there shall be a free world."

The President, understandably, did not enter into detail as to how this pledge was to be made good. He spoke, however, of both industrialists and labor leaders who "think only of profits" and ruthlessly use their "economic power" to force acceptance of their demands.

There can be no question but that both industry and labor have been responsible, in different instances, for stoppage of defense plants by lockouts or by strikes. In the recent case of the Bendix company, of New Jersey, when the President ordered the Army to take over operation of that plant, he placed the blame upon management for failure to live up to the findings of the national mediation board.

In other cases there can be no question that labor leaders have been to blame. In such cases as the recent strike in the "captive" coal mines, not even John Lewis himself can deny the sole issue was the "closed shop," an issue which should never be raised in free America and, certainly, not in a time of such emergency as this.

In some instances it has been neither management nor labor which has caused strikes and shutdowns. It has been subversive forces which have deliberately fomented trouble in order to serve their dictator-masters abroad.

The truth of the matter is there are labor leaders and industrial executives alike who utterly fail to comprehend the truth about the world situation and America's hazardous place therein. If they could only be aroused out of their fatuous stupor, they would know that neither profits, union dues, scales of wages, hours of work nor any other conditions matter one iota when compared to the urgency of the national defense and war-aid policies.

When all Americans learn that today the only thing that counts is loyalty to America, when all learn that other loyalties—to profits, to fellow workers, to union or non-union and to anything else—can be but secondary, the country will be fit to fill the high role destiny has prepared for her.

Those who cannot understand this, will soon have to be marked as something other than Americans, something which belongs only in the ranks of the robotized serfs to the dictators. For the day is fast nearing when, of Americans as of the cause of freedom itself, it can only be said "he who is not with us is against us."

With the Army, the Navy and civilian statesmen all taking a hand, running a Japanese government must be much like driving away from the beer garden.

What Principle?

Julius P. Paulson, of South Dakota, had a flock of chickens and mortgaged them, to a bank. Later he had opportunity to move to Oregon. He sold the mortgaged chickens to raise money to move, with his family, to the west.

Before a payment of the mortgage was due, Paulson mailed the money to the bank. Whereupon the bank had him placed under arrest and insists on prosecuting him.

New friends in Oregon have placed in escrow sufficient to pay off the mortgage, on condition the bank in Dakota drops court proceedings and permits Paulson to return to his job and the support of his family.

But the bank says no, that the case must be pressed "as a matter of principle."

What principle? The principle that a few dollars of bank money is worth more than proper support for an innocent family? The principle that once a man has made a slight misstep he is to be hounded into prison and disgrace, even though the bank loses not one cent by the transaction? The principle that a bank, just because it is a bank, can never afford to display the slightest humaneness, but most always inflexibly demand the pound of flesh?

The law of the courts may be on the side of this Dakota bank, but the law of human decency and human understanding is altogether against it. It's attitude, in this case, approaches too closely to that of Shylock to be defensible.

In the west, a couple of undergrads travel 2,000 miles to a football game, in a car with no springs. Thus, one not only sees the country but feels it.

Billion for Russia

One billion dollars of credit under terms of the lend-lease act have been advanced to the Russian government. This will be repayable, either in cash or goods, without interest. It is probable a large portion will be repaid in materials, Russia having raw materials of which this country is in need.

There will be, of course, the usual criticism of this administration action from the lunatic fringe, in and out of congress, which refuses to look facts in the face and, instead, considers it more vital to discredit Roosevelt than to preserve the safety of the nation.

The truth is, of course, that Russia is today fighting for our cause, whether wittingly or not. For the destruction of Hitlerism and the curbing of Germany so she can not again disrupt the peace of the world is the most vital objective before the world today.

And no one can deny the Russians are doing some very effective work toward that desired smashing of all for which Hitler stands. Every reverse inflicted on the German army should be cause for rejoicing in America. And, by the same token, everything we can contribute toward making those reverses permanent and continuous we should do with gratitude for the opportunity.

If, by lending Russia a billion, or two or three or four billion, we can assure the complete crushing of the German armies, it will be cheap for us. Far cheaper, in any event, than the cost in treasure and in lives of fighting Germany ourselves.

Which, if Russia goes down, will be the probable outcome.

We had the queerest dream, about John Lewis being brought to time by Madame Perkins, looking up from her knitting and saying "now, now."

Japan on Move

Reports coming by way of London indicate the Japanese are again moving to seize strategic advantage in the Far East. Probably spurred on by their belief the Germans are winning against the Russians, Tokyo is once more displaying its bold face, with the "Excuse, please" face of appeasement turned away for the time being.

Demands on Portugal for joint Japanese-Portuguese control of Macao are, probably, the most ominous. This port city, long controlled by Lisbon, is only ten miles from the British port of Hong Kong and any establishment of Japanese in force, there, would menace a British outpost second only to Singapore in strategic importance in the Far East.

Further the Chinese report ominous moves by Japanese troops toward Burma, and threatening Thailand and China's own province of Kwangsi.

It may well be that the visit by General Sir Archibald Wavell, to Singapore, has greater implications than an inspection of defense at that Malayan outpost. Unless German reverses force a quick reversal of Japanese policy, a resumption of the smiling features of appeasement, there is likelihood that both Britain and the United States may be faced with the final crisis in the Far East within the next few weeks, at most.

Once again the sons of Nippon move, jackal like, to take advantage of what they believe to be the invincibility of arms of their European partner in international gangsterism, Nazi Germany.

Last words: "Some time, Fuehrer, we must take a stroll, after dark, in Nantes."

Goebbels, in a burst of candor, tells his people that times are tough and will be tougher. Now if the Duce only had some hair to let down.

Georgia Editors Say:

THE WINNER

(From The Eatonton Messenger)

Death was the winner in 43 Georgia traffic accidents during the month of September, according to a recent news release from State Patrol headquarters. Even so, the score this year was less than that of September, 1940, when 77 lives were lost.

Despite this decrease during the month of September, the total number of traffic fatalities for the first nine months of the year are 69 above the same period for 1940. No matter how you write this, Death is the winner.

No respecter of sex, the Grim Reaper took 34 men and nine women. Despite the state administration, he leveled whites and blacks alike, taking 30 white people and 13 Negroes.

If the record were to end with September, we might feel that everything would work out. But it doesn't. October will also be a winning month, and November and December, and all months thereafter, until drivers and pedestrians learn to think, drive and walk logically and with due regard for the other fellow.

September's fatalities included nine drivers, 20 passengers, nine pedestrians, four bicyclists and one occupant of an animal-drawn vehicle. It's a gory record, and one that should be reduced. Constant vigilance is the only answer.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

WHEELER'S INANITIES WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The extreme shallowness of the isolationist's point of view seems to lie in their inability to treat European war events as anything more than an academic issue. Nothing better illustrates their unwillingness or incapacity to deal with the grave international situation realistically than the seven-hour harangue delivered in the senate this week by Senator Wheeler, of Montana, head and horns of the noninterventionist group.

Any intelligent person of an open mind, with enough patience and immunity from boredom to sit through his two-day tirade against the administration's foreign policy, could not escape the conclusion that the isolationists have missed the underlying theme of our whole defense policy.

Wheeler's speech is cited because what he said in some seven hours of disjointed debate, spread out over two days, was nothing more than a recapitulation of what every other administration sore-head, pacifist crackpot, or misguided patriot of the isolationist ilk has uttered during the past two years.

IGNORES REAL FACTS The weakness of his position rests on the serious as of the war situation to us, and places the whole question of our intervention through British and Russian aid on no higher plane than that involved in a decision as to whether we should intercede in behalf of one of two South American countries which might be at war with each other.

In other words, he treats the question of our present foreign policy as purely an academic issue. Unwilling to concede that we have anything to fear from a Hitler victory in Europe, he is unable to see where we have a greater stake in the outcome than the amount our intervention costs us.

What seems to concern the Montana senator more than anything else is how we are going to raise the money to meet the huge expenditures we are making for national defense. Hater of all things British that he is, he is particularly disturbed about the $13,000,000 congress has voted for British aid under the lend-lease program.

OLD TREASON And yet if someone troubled to dig up the record on him, it would probably show he has voted for or given lip service to practically every wild scheme for raiding the Treasury that has been brought before congress during the 19 years he has been a member of the senate. Anything but a conservative, whose robes he wears himself with, he has a background of ultra liberalism which found him running for vice president on the ticket with the elder La Follette, of Wisconsin, in 1924, and which projected him as John L. Lewis' favored candidate for president last year.

"What is going to happen to the United States?" Wheeler shouted several times during his long innocuous speech. But he was not asking in terms of what the consequences to us might be of a Hitler victory over Britain and Russia, left us as the only world power between him and his aims for world domination. With new-found conservative piety, he was expressing concern over the huge government defense outlays we are having to make to meet the contingency of a Hitler victory.

MORE HYSTERICS In the same sort of hysterical outburst, he constitutional system of government, rehabilitating all the old moth-eaten argument about war leading to dictatorship. But he failed to mention that we fought another war within the present generation without losing our constitutional system, and that Great Britain is still a democracy two years after the present conflict started.

The most amateurish performance of all in the current foreign policy debates in the practice of the isolationists in discussion was as though it were a subject of academic debate. With all of the violence of a schoolboy orator they defend the proposition that the country is against war, as though the statement had ever been challenged in any responsible quarter. And in doing so, of course, they impute to supporters of the administration's foreign policy a desire to lead the nation into war.

WHEELER THE LOUDEST Senator Wheeler has been the loudest and most intemperate offender of them all. What he and his misguided associates seem utterly incapable of seeing is that the war in Europe means something far more important to us than merely a fight between two nations or two groups of nations. He views it with no more implications than a clash between Paraguay and Uruguay in South America.

The opposite and the more tenable view—the view on which the administration's whole foreign policy is based—has been given to the senate by Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, one of the keenest minds in the senate and one of the best informed members on foreign events.

"There can be no doubt that Hitler means to dominate the world," he said. "The destruction of Russia is therefore a vital step in his forward march to world domination. He is ruthless in the extreme and unapologetically cruel in all his purposes. No appeal of humanity can reach him. No cry of anguish can reach him. Only force can reach him. One cannot read the history of Europe since September, 1939, and arrive at any other conclusion."

"As certainly as the sun shines, if he becomes the absolute master of Europe, he will challenge the mastery of any nation or group of nations in the western hemisphere. . . . Do not doubt it. . . . All the evidence is in."

Tragedy

On the Lot

As this is written it is reported eight elephants have died on the lot at Highland avenue, where Ringling Brothers' great circus has been showing twice daily. Others of the herd of great beasts are said to be ill.

Cause of the fatal malady among the pachyderms is not determined.

There is something especially tragic about animal death which occurs to beasts in captivity. Of course, it is to be expected that caged beasts do eventually die in captivity. Many, in fact, are so born.

But always, when elephant, lion, tiger, puma or any of the natural denizens of the forest die within the cage of man, there is a sort of regretful wish they could have been returned to the freedom of the veldt, or the pampas or the jungle or from wherever they came. For it puts such a finish to the story. Your heart feels sad as you regretfully think of them. At least, is one noble creature that will never roam, free and unafraid, in the surroundings God intended.

Not to say the keepers of most captive animals, today, are unkind. You have only to look, even casually, at the conditions of the animals with such a circus as that of the Ringling Brothers to know these creatures are well kept, well cared for. There is not a sign of neglect or of cruelty.

An Old

Superstition

There is an old African superstition that all elephants, when they feel the hour of death approaching, go to some secret place deep within the unexplored place, and there die, alone. It is said this place, to which man has never penetrated, is white with the bones of elephants, elephants that have gone there, and died, for centuries past. And stories have been based upon the idea the amount of ivory to be salvaged there would make any discoverer a multimillionaire overnight.

That must be superstition. Old African explorers substantiate the yarn, however, by saying they have never seen the carcass of an elephant that has died a natural death. Only those, which have fallen victim to the hunters, or been killed in combat with some other wild beast.

Anyway, we know the elephants which died in Atlanta this week did not go to any secret place to breathe their last. But we don't know what subconscious longing was in every elephant brain as the end drew near. Perhaps they would have gone to the secret place of death had they been able.

Financial

Loss

But, however valuable an elephant may be in the wild, he is a valuable piece of property to a circus. It is estimated that a trained elephant able to take part in the big "bull" acts of the center ring, is worth from $10,000 to $15,000. Thus Ringling Brothers lost something like $100,000 in Atlanta, this week, when the elephants died.

And that is no inconsiderable loss. It will take years to train other elephants to replace those that have gone.

An elephant is just about the strangest of beasts, anyway. Scientists say he possesses only a minute brain. Yet his capacity to learn, the manner in which he can be trained, denotes possession of good memory, at least a modicum of reasoning power. How else does the elephant know not to press down his weight when his trainer is lying beneath one of those vast pads he uses as feet?

They use elephants as beasts of burden, as laborers, in India. With the prehensile tool, trunk, working elephants not only transport heavy material, but pile it and arrange it, as lumber is piled.

And is there any other creature which possesses so perfect a thing as a trunk? The delicacy combined with the fearful strength of an elephant's trunk is one of the marvels of creation.

Perhaps the tail with which a monkey hangs, or swings, from a tree limb is as useful but, perhaps not. There is only one piece of animal anatomy more essential, or useful, than an elephant's trunk. That is a human thumb. For without thumbs with which to grasp tools or weapons, primitive man could never have evolved from the beast stage himself.

Ghosts in ## Africa

Well, if that old superstition has any foundation in truth, I suppose the ghosts of the elephants that died in Atlanta have by now marched in ghostly bulk across the windswept veldt, deep into the fastnesses of the mysterious forest. They have come to the elephant place of death and have laid their ghostly carcasses beside the bones of countless ancestors. And, in some elephant Valhalla, the old monarch of the forest are listening, half believing to the strange story told by these newcomers—the story of streamlined

Treaty of ## Versailles

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—So much has been said of the deliberate cruelty of the Treaty of Versailles, particularly by Adolf Hitler in his appeal to the self-pity of the Germans, that this document might seem to have been written with the sole intention of inflicting hurt on a beaten but gallant and honorable foe. The wisdom of the treaty will always be open to discussion, but the contention that it was wantonly cruel fares badly when it is considered against the conduct of the Germans in the first World War.

Incidentally, then, as now, the point was made that the German people, of course, were not at fault, but were only carrying out the orders of their bosses. Today, again, 100 Frenchmen are selected at random out of a pen, as a farmer grabs chickens for the ax, and shot in reprisal for the unsolved murder of a German officer, the German people are innocent. But, in the presence of the horror, the thought naturally occurs that the German people are a great menace to all non-German peoples for the very reason that they are forever being driven by such bosses as the Kaiser and the Fuehrer.

Judged

By Armies

But the attitude and conduct of the German armies is all that the victims have to judge the German people by in these recurring tragedies and certainly the terms imposed on the Germans after 1918 were not harsh by comparison with the actions of their soldiers when Germany was riding high. That conduct was not repeated at their expense by the victorious armies of the Allies, for there is in the record of the limited occupation nothing comparable to scenes described by Hugh Gibson, who was the secretary of the American legation in Belgium in 1914. Mr. Gibson kept a diary which was published in book form later which strongly suggests that whether they serve one master or another the German military men retain characteristics and ideas that are inherent.

Visiting Louvain after the sack and slaughter, Mr. Gibson reminded the German officer who was conducting the party that the Hague convention forbade collective penalties for the lawless acts of individuals.

"All Belgians Are Dogs" "He dismissed that to his own satisfaction," Mr. Gibson wrote, "by remarking that 'All Belgians are dogs and would do these things (sniping) unless they are taught what will happen to them,' an attitude which has now been openly adopted toward the Poles by the Nazi invaders."

"With a hard glint he told us the purpose of his work; the burden of what he had to say was something like this: 'We shall make this place a desert. For generations people will come to see what we have done and it will teach them to respect Germany and think twice before they resist her.'"

"When the German government realized the horror and loathing with which the civilized world learned of the fate of Louvain, the orders were canceled and the story sent out that the German forces had tried to prevent the destruction. Never has a government lied more brazenly. When we arrived the destruction was being carried out in an orderly way that showed careful preparation. It was only when he learned how civilization regarded his crimes that the Kaiser's heart began to bleed."

Conduct

Of Savages

"In Andenne and Seilles," Mr. Gibson wrote, "the Germans killed about 300. According to the inhabitants who remained there was a reign of terror during which the Germans rendered themselves guilty of every sort of atrocity and barbarity. It seems to be generally believed that the massacre was due to resistance of retreating Belgian troops. Whatever the provocation the German conduct was that of savages."

In Dinant, he wrote, "The Germans set out to pillage and shoot. They drove the people to the streets and set fire to the houses. Those who tried to run away were shot. The civilians who could be rounded up were driven into the square. The women were lined up on one side. On the other side the men were lined up in two rows, the first kneeling. Then two volleys were fired. The dead and wounded were left together until the Germans got around to burying them, when practically all were dead. This was only one of several wholesale executions. The Germans do not seem to contradict the essential facts."

These are only samples of Mr. Gibson's diary, the whole of which strongly urges the conclusion that the Treaty of Versailles was remarkable for its civilized restraint.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL

A BIT OF ACTING Well, I came out of the Erlanger from seeing "There Shall Be No Night" feeling spiritually depressed but mentally exalted. That's possible.

It was the acting which made everyone feel exalted; that and the power of the spoken words.

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne are two of the very finest actors the stage has produced in all its long history. I keep wondering if there will be any more great ones to come after those we have left.

So very, very few persons can really act. The musty old Erlanger, one of the few remaining citadels of the stage, ceased to be the Erlanger and became a home in Finland. All of us were sitting there, looking in on the lives of those in the home and the visitors who came and went.

The "road" has all but disappeared, and even if it should show signs of coming back, there aren't many theaters left which can handle a road show.

Also, there aren't many actors who will go on the road. That may be because there aren't many actors. I know I felt like writing a note to Lunt and Fontanne and just saying, "Thank you for coming to Atlanta." It can't be very pleasant, the road. Not as it is today.

I am no foe of the movies. I think they are a great art. They have to aim for the average. The stage doesn't. At least, it never did. They have their own sphere. There are some great movie actors. But—for acting—for dramatic acting—there aren't many who can do it.

It's a pity about the stage. Especially the "road" and its gradual disappearance.

TIME WAS— I can remember, in college, going up to the "peanut" gallery—standing in line for an hour before the doors opened—to see plays.

There were a lot of giants on the stage then.

I went on the orchestra seats below with some of David Warfield's scenes. Man, he could act! He could pull the sobs right out of you when he came to one of his big scenes. "The Music Master" was my favorite.

I remember John Drew very well indeed. The last thing I saw him in was "Pennywise." I can remember some of those scenes as if they were yesterday, and they were more than 20 years ago.

Cyril Maude in "Grumpy" was something to remember.

There were great shows almost every week then. Maude Adams was witnessed from the top gallery in two performances. Otis Skinner came through in "Mister Anthony." I remember his donkey.

Those were good days of the stage. I got to know Robert Mantel as a friend. Also Fritz Leiber. There were my favorite Shakespearean actors. I carried a spear, took part in the mob scenes and helped make the off-stage sound effects such as the distant sound of a crowd or shouts from the battle. Also the off-stage clash of swords. One of Robert Mantel's forebears had been named McGill and he used to introduce me as a relative. That was potent stuff for a young fellow. I saw him play Romeo once and he was so good that despite his age and a stiff knee he made the girls all sigh. Fritz Leiber offered me a job with his cast, playing small parts, but he told me as a friend that the voice, which was husky and not too strong even then, made it impossible ever to get anywhere. I remember Mantel best as "Lear" and Leiber best as Hamlet. Well, I got started on this reminiscence and didn't mean to go so far. They were great days of the stage. I am sorry they are gone.

"THERE SHALL BE NO NIGHT" The play which Lunt and Fontanne present is by Robert Sherwood and is, as most everyone knows, the Pulitzer Prize winner. The reviewers have told that it is the story of a family in Sweden, a famous Russian doctor who had left that country after the revolution was done; who had married an American girl and who had gone to Finland and become a citizen of that country. He had won the Nobel prize for his research in the mind of man. You get the picture of civilization and of freedom not guarded. You get, clearer than any movie could produce it, the picture of what Nazism means to all people, great and small.

You see it come closer and closer. You see, and feel, all the futility of the forces against it. A few Americans come to fight it. A few Poles are there. Some Englishmen are there fighting a foe they know will win.

You see, too, that as the doctor insists, the real defenses are behind the forehead. Indeed, that is what we all have been talking about.

If we aren't prepared in our minds, then all our concrete, our planes, our ships are worthless.

The acting is so simply flawless, so much perfection, that one comes away wondering how it is possible to achieve such perfection. Maybe the road will come back again. It would add so much to life if it would. If it does there will be more great actors produced.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN

My Dear Louise:

I once tried to tell you, in one-syllable words, that you were two persons in one, but you interrupted to say: "Sure, I know. Mental and physical. And the mind has power over matter."

But I meant something more than that. There is a you that is somehow separate from your mind, for it can tell your mind what to do.

If your mind, acting without orders, wastes time reviewing last night's party or planning a dream tomorrow, the you that is boss can say: "None of that. There is work to do. Quit playing around and get to work on this algebra." And your mind does as you command, without talking back.

Many people who are older than you kid themselves by pretending they do not control their minds. "You can't be held reined by your thoughts," they say, "for you can't help what you think." Thoughts are like Topsy; they just happen.

That is true as far as it goes. Your mind receives countless impressions, and thoughts stream in and out in endless procession. But a thought seems to have proud manners; it doesn

Dudley Glass

My friend Ralph McGill cannot resist writing eulogies of food—and how he yearns for more of it. Because he's on a diet, trying to avoid purchasing new and larger trousers or persuading Mrs. McGill to insert another gusset—or whatever you call it—in the back.

I wish Mr. McGill would stop writing about food. He is like Charles Dickens. When he describes something to eat, you feel like going right out to the kitchen, at any hour, and stewing up something.

I, too, am a sincere, not to say enthusiastic, admirer of food. I delight in my morning stroll through Broad street and past its groceries and delicatessen. The aroma of apples—is any perfume sweeter?—the sight of trays of shrimp and fish, calf brains and pomegranates. Thick red steaks. Pork chops sliced alluringly. Cottage cheese by the dishpanful.

All these make me long to buy a bushel basket full of this and that and take it home and order instant action in the kitchen. But here is where Mr. McGill and I differ.

Ralph, I am sure, if permitted to break training, could roll up his sleeves, reach for the correct tools, and make that table look like a couple of Great Danes had attacked it when nobody was looking.

But, I poor visionary gourmet, would get nowhere. My appetite is in my eyes—and my nose, except in the case of chitlins. I would fill my plate with three pounds of assorted viands—as a starter—eat two and one-half ounces—and discover I'm filled up. I would like to eat more—but I can't. My appetite and my capacity do not balance. You can't put a two-gallon meal into a half-pint stomach—without something busting.

Some day, when I acquire riches and Ralph is about ready to abandon that diet, I'm going to order about 17 dollars' worth of fine food and have it spread on the table—and invite Ralph to come out and eat it. While I look on. If I can raise the budget to $24, he can bring Bill Howland along. If my purse and the market supply reach proper proportions, I'll even invite Channing Cope.

Starving—But O. K.

I wish I dared to peek—but reading the last chapter of a crime mystery is considered unfair.

I'm thinking of Little Orphan Annie. Daddy Warbucks and Puntjab, the mysterious big East Indian who recently disguised himself as an Apache or something.

They spent several weeks in a desert mine, threatened by poison gas. They got out—into a canyon from which is apparently no escape. But now they're getting notes dropped from Bill Slagg's airplane, with all the news of the world.

What bothers me is that a careful check for the past seven weeks fails to reveal that the trio has received any sustenance whatsoever—not even a fried horned toad. I can't help wishing that Mr. Slagg would drop the captives fewer notes and more ham and doughnuts and coffee—with a ketchup.

Why Editors Get Rich.

Associate on the staff of this favorite newspaper, or a fine spirit of co-operation, sends me a clipping for the column. The reason I don't credit the source is that he forgot to mention it and then went out of town. But here it is: "A child is born in the neighborhood; the attending physician gets $20. The editor gives the loud-mouth youngster and the happy parents a send-off and gets $0."

"He grows up and marries. The editor publishes another long-winded article and tells a dozen lies about the 'beautiful and accomplished bride.' The clergyman gets $10 and a piece of cake, and the editor gets $000.

"In course of time he dies. The doctor gets from $25 to $100, and the undertaker gets from $50 to $200. The editor publishes a notice of his death and an obituary two columns long, lodge and society resolutions, a lot of poetry, a free card of thanks, and gets $0,000.

"No wonder so many editors get rich."

Defense Activities To Be Co-ordinated

Defense activities of all state agencies will be co-ordinated under the State Planning Board as the result of an order signed yesterday by the Governor.

In addition to its other duties, the chief executive ordered that the planning board be "authorized, empowered and directed to concentrate on mobilization of resources of the state of Georgia for the purpose of strengthening our defense."

Previously, the planning board has been carrying on much of the defense work, but some other state agencies have been functioning independently. Under the new set-up, Director Richard C. Job will be the co-ordinating head.

Head of House Upheld In Georgia Whisky Case

A Georgian residing in a dry county may have more than a quart of whisky in his home without violating the law, the court of appeals said yesterday.

Lewis Gibbs was convicted in the Carrollton city court of illegal possession of whisky after officers found five pints in his house. The defendant, however, said one pint was his wife's, two belonged to a boarder and only two were his.

His testimony was supported by other witnesses and the court's majority decision said the evidence failed to establish his guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. Judge Hugh McIntyre dissented, holding the unrebuted presumption was that Gibbs, as head of the house, owned all five pints.

'Gutter Clean-Up Drive' Is Started in Decatur

Fire Chief Julius D. Peek, of Decatur, yesterday urged citizens of that city to participate in a "Gutter Clean-Up Campaign" to prevent fires caused by dry leaves in roof gutters.

Such fires occur every fall when sparks from chimneys, ignite the leaves, Chief Peek said, adding that roof fires are especially dangerous because they are difficult to fight. For safety, roof gutters should be cleaned every two or three weeks during the fall, he said.

Little Hope Held For Quick Rise In Teacher Pay

Governor Promises To Better Conditions at First Chance.

By LUKE GREENE.

The Governor yesterday held out little hope for an immediate increase in teachers' salaries, but promised he would "seize the first opportunity" to make their working conditions better.

Addressing the 16th annual convention of the Georgia Association of School Administrators, the chief executive said he realized the cost of living was going up, but pointed out he had a real problem in trying to pay off a $300,000 indebtedness without raising taxes. The school department's share of this debt, he said, was about $450,000.

"Much is being said today about an increase in salaries for teachers," the Governor said. "This already would have been in effect but for the fact that I had to pay back an indebtedness of $321,000 in overdue salaries as well as a textbook debt of approximately $700,000."

Favors Vocational Expansion. Omitting any reference to the present University System controversy, the Governor told the educators he was heartily in favor of expanding the vocational education program.

"If education does anything for an individual it should prepare him to hold a job and earn a living," he said. "I want to see the vocational program further developed in order that more of our young people may have an opportunity for this practical type of training."

"Leading educators tell me that we need state or area vocational trade schools. Georgia is far behind in this type of development. Such a program when developed will not in any way interfere with our present school program or local control of our present school system."

Collins Advocates Boost.

The Governor's remarks came after Dr. M. D. Collins, state school superintendent, advocated a boost in teachers' salaries of at least 25 per cent and proposed that the next general assembly take the public school system out of politics "as far as it is humanly possible."

Praising the Governor and general assembly for making it possible to pay back teachers' salaries, Dr. Collins turned to the chief executive and jokingly commented: "I'll always give him credit when he gives me cash."

In the future the Governor promised that teachers would be paid on time, "even if we have to cut off some of those bigwigs."

The school leaders today will hear Attorney General Ellis Arnall, who already has announced his candidacy for Governor. The attorney general will speak on "Education in a Democracy."

This afternoon the convention delegates will attend the Georgia Tech-Kentucky football game.

By GEORGE B. ANDERSON.

"You advertising men," a housewife writes, "are good talkers. You can make a lot of pretty speeches about what advertising does for me. You're great at the organizing. The fact remains, though, that advertising costs money. The merchant has to pay for it, and he has to collect from somebody. It seems to me that I'm nominated."

Mrs. Blank says we're great at theorizing, so I'll try to make as positive and factual a statement as possible.

Advertising gives you direct benefits, Mrs. Blank, by doing these two things:

1. It accelerates free competitive enterprise.

Because of advertising and the merciless spotlight it throws upon one line of goods as opposed to another, it means that a manufacturer or a merchant has to be good if he hopes to stay in business. It means that he can't "fudge" for a minute without getting caught. Because of advertising and through advertising, there's always a competitor ready to take advantage of any mistake any businessman makes. That's a mighty good thing for you, even if it is tough on the merchant.

2. It lowers living costs by widening distribution, thus reducing prices through economies of mass production.

Cigarette manufacturers are mighty large advertisers. You've heard about the amount of money they send on advertising. Yet, if that great amount of money were to be devoted to reducing the price of cigarettes, the amount spent per package of cigarettes on advertising is so small that no saving could be passed along to you.

Is that specific enough, Mrs. Blank?

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

REPENTANCE AND FAITH.

Sunday's lesson, Luke 15:11-24, is a study of Repentance and Faith, based on the memorable story told by Jesus of the son who demanded his portion of goods in his father's estate and, receiving them, went away into a far country, "wasting his substance in riotous living," and his awakening thereof and the joyous return to the father's house and love. We often call this the Story of the Prodigal. Well, it is really the story of every sinner that repenteth.

Repentance and faith are the conditions of salvation. God's love includes everyone, and everyone has sinned and gone astray, and everyone may return to the Father, if only he or she will repent and believe in the Lord Jesus Christ.

What is repentance? It is godly sorrow over our sin—the realization that we are lost and undone and without hope in the world—and the willingness to admit our need of a Saviour. Repentance is not merely being sorry that we have not been apprehended in some particular sin. The repentant heart does not wait for someone to accuse him of wrong-doing. He admits it. He pours out his heart in confession of his guilt before God, crying: "Lord have mercy on me a sinner." Neither is repentance a matter of penance. We sometimes hear it suggested that one can atone for his sins by paying money to someone to absolve him from his guilt. That isn't the Bible picture of repentance. We must confess our sins to Jesus, and when, in godly sorrow for our sins, we cry unto him for pardon, He is faithful and just to forgive our sin, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

What is faith? What is faith as representing the truly repentant heart toward God's love and

CHURCH IDENTIFICATION, BEAUTIFICATION URGED

Editor, Constitution: There are around 2,500 Baptist churches scattered over the state from Alabama to South Carolina. In the neighborhood of 1,400 of these meeting houses are not marked either on the buildings or along the highways near where they are located.

Many of these buildings have not had a pint of paint put on them since the chairman of the building committee received the keys from the architect as it was completed years before.

The alluvial soil of Georgia that will grow oats and peas, cane and potatoes, wheat and cotton, and it will also grow lovely flowers and shrubs. Wouldn't it be fine if lawn grass and shrubs and flowers were planted to beautify these houses?

Then, too, along the highways arrows with the name and direction and denomination of these churches would be of keen interest to the thousands of travelers who might be concerned in visiting and worshipping in these same meeting houses. We owe it to ourselves to add to the houses of God over our state and thus perpetuate what our fathers contributed to the commonwealth in their day and generation.

Wouldn't it be fine if every denomination in the state would at once put on a renovating, identifying, beautifying campaign? It would mean much for our churches in the way of publicity and gain much for the churches in every way.

DETROIT WOMEN ACTED IN DISGRACEFUL MANNER

Editor, Constitution: In the disgraceful conduct of a group of women pickets in Detroit, we have more proof of lawlessness, disorder, confusion, and utter disregard for good government. What a shame that we should have published in the newspapers of America the treatment Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, received from this group of women pickets, when he went to Detroit for a tour of Detroit's arms production centers. They did this to let the world know that they were opposed to this nation's entry into war. It is my firm conviction that this terrible conduct is another expression from the America First party.

To put America first we must be loyal to the President, who was elected by the people to fill this high office in this time of great emergency. It is time for all good men to come to the aid of our government. No state or national leader is loyal to his country who will work against unity in a time when we should stand together and be of one mind and one purpose. To save the American way of life, we must unite our national strength. We, the people, must back up the President, and every state and national leader who is working to build up the defense of America.

ATLANTA MAN URGES PEACE WITH HITLER

Editor Constitution: Nobody, I think, will call Dorothy Thompson an "appeaser" or "Fifth Columnist." The more significant, therefore, is the realism expressed in her column of Thursday morning, in which she discusses the relative wisdom of military action as against political intervention for the overthrow of Hitlerism. Having pointed out at length the strength of the German arms and position, she asks and answers:

"Where is there the Army in size and equipment that can face them anywhere, with any probability of decisive victory? Unless there are military secrets to which we are not privy, the answer is—nowhere."

For military victory, Miss Thompson continues, we must build "a force of eight or ten million, with positive air and mechanical superiority." Not only so, but we must strike soon, because, she says, the chance of a "decisive military decision diminishes daily." And that policy, she continues, means "to attack Germany not in her weakest spot, (which is) the Hitler political regime, but in her strongest, the German Army."

There must be millions, who, like Miss Thompson, are beginning to realize that we are being rushed headlong into the most tragic, expensive and perilous adventure in our history; millions who feel deeply that every other possibility should be exhausted before we take the plunge. It was with that conviction that a group of Atlanta citizens a few days ago united in urging the President to lead a movement for peace, "as the best hope of ending Europe's agony and conserving America's highest welfare." Backed by the tremendous power and influence of this country, the effort might succeed, to the great advantage of all concerned.

WANTS ISOLATIONISTS IN INTERNMENT CAMPS

Editor, Constitution: If the British, with Russian aid, are fighting the world-wide battle of democracy, it is our duty to help them in every way possible to win this war so that freedom and liberty may go on unchallenged down the ages so that our children's children may enjoy this blessed heritage. On the other hand, if this war does not concern us as a nation, as some of our U. S. senators and others seem to think, then it would be better for us as a nation to withdraw our help and forget about the whole thing "till Hitler captures the world and leaves us for the last savory morsel."

These senators and other so-called Americans who seem to be sailing under false colors under the guise of "Isolationists" and "America First" are seemingly trying to throw a monkey wrench into the whole governmental machinery, while in its endeavor to carry the war on to a glorious victory. The government, in the interest of patriotism, loyalty and self-preservation, should throw into internment camps at once these obstructionists who are obstructing by every means at their command our successful prosecution of the war.

Navy Threatens To Take Over Struck Defense Jobs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The Navy became embroiled in sharp controversy with AFL buildings trades units over work stoppages at three military establishments in the San Diego (Cal.) area yesterday.

F. D. R. Studies Taking Marines Out of China

Move Expected To Enter Into U. S.-Japanese Conferences.

By The Associated Press.

A wave of conjecture that the United States is "clearing the decks" against a possible clash with Japan followed President Roosevelt's disclosure yesterday that he was considering the withdrawal of the 970 Marines stationed in China.

The President carefully refrained from giving a reason for the contemplated move, but some Army and Navy authorities have argued that the presence of small American forces in Peiping, Tientsin and Shanghai were liabilities rather than a protection for American lives and interests.

It was pointed out that these forces, isolated in Japanese-controlled areas, would be unable to offer any effective resistance if hostilities involving the United States commenced.

In unofficial speculation, the move was also linked with current discussions between the United States and Japan concerning methods of settling their differences peacefully. Some thought the United States might say to Japan: "We are prepared to withdraw our forces from China, so why don't you do likewise?"

Russia in Picture.

Meanwhile, the future of Japanese relations with the United States and Russia appeared to pivot on what Russia will say to a protest over runaway mines in the Sea of Japan and the outcome of Saburo Kurosaki's "peace" mission to Washington.

The New York correspondent of the newspaper Asahi telephoned to Tokyo the opinion that the chance of success in rapprochement at Washington was "about one in 10." Kurosaki holds the fate of war or peace.

Asahi appended the comment that "it should be made clear that Japan will not pay any price" at the expense of Japan's broad program of Asiatic leadership.

Kurosaki, an diplomatist chosen to break the impasse at Washington, paused overnight at Manila on his clipper flights and visited briefly with High Commissioner Francis B. Sayre and President Manuel Quezon. He expected to take off at dawn today for San Francisco.

Letter From Premier.

It was reported that Kurosaki carries a letter from the Japanese premier, General Hideki Tojo, for presentation to President Roosevelt, but there was nothing to indicate it was more than formal credentials.

In the other most important sector of Japan's diplomacy—relations with Russia—the foreign office still awaited an answer to its urgent protest over the sinking Wednesday night of the Japanese steamer Kehl Maru, with a possible loss of 131 lives, attributed to collision with a mine that had floated from the Vladivostok defense belt.

Russian Ambassador Constantin Smetanin said that he would have to get instructions from home before answering. Koh Ishii, Japanese cabinet spokesman, without waiting for the Russian answer, said that Russia had promised precautions before and questioned her good faith.

Ishii, declaring that free floating explosives violated freedom of the seas, said that "America must support Japan's stand on this issue."

The 4,523-ton Kehl Maru went down about 130 miles out in the Sea of Japan, southeast of Vladivostok.

Soviet Loan Emphasized.

The Japanese press, showing more hostility to the United States, splashed the news of the United States' billion-dollar loan to Russia and took the view that that was but another indication of United States' determination to give unstinted help to the powers fighting Germany and Italy.

A final decision on the question of withdrawing the United States Marines from China presumably awaits further clarification of the situation in the Pacific and may enter into the Japanese-American discussions when they are resumed.

The Navy announced that unless work was resumed Monday on the $10,500,000 in defense projects it would take over the work. Work was halted last Monday on a destroyer base graving dock because of what the Navy said was a jurisdictional dispute. Subsequently, AFL workers left their jobs on projects at the naval training station and the Marines' Camp Elliott, asking 12 1-2 per cent increase in wages.

Secretary of the Navy Knox appealed Thursday for a return to work. In reply, K. G. Blitzer, secretary of the San Diego Building Trades Council, charged the Navy was trying to deny labor its rights of collective bargaining.

Other labor developments: The CIO United Automobile Workers declared no more axes would be shipped from the Ford Motor Company's River Rouge (Mich.) plant to its Canadian plant at Windsor until the Ford Company of Canada recognized the CIO-UAW's bargaining rights.

Ford of Canada is turning out many vehicles for the British armed forces.

In the midst of this dispute, a strike by a small group of welders forcing closing of some units of the River Rouge plant, making 20,000 idle.

The welders said they were asking wage adjustments. The CIO-UAW struck the Lincoln, N. J., assembly plant of General Motors Corporation, affecting 4,000 workers. Strikers said they were protesting discharge of older employees and their replacement by new men.

In Kearny, N. J., the CIO Shipbuilders' Union was demanding discharge from the Navy-operated Federal Shipbuilding & Drydock Company of union men behind their dues. The Navy refused to pay the dues to the Defense Mediation Board.

President Roosevelt announced he would appoint a special board of three to investigate a dispute involving the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks and the AFL teamsters.

Some 60 teamsters are on strike in Detroit and the President said a spread of the dispute to several other cities was threatened. He asked a return to work by striking teamsters.

Boatright Sees Major Welfare Job Turnover

Many State and County Workers May Lose Out in New Move.

A major turnover in the personnel of state and county public welfare offices may result from a new development in the operation of the merit system, J. A. Boatright, supervisor of examinations, said yesterday.

Present registers, from which employees are drawn were set up on the basis of examinations given nearly a year ago. An employee who failed to pass last year's examinations is ineligible for a job in the welfare department. Boatright said, this is the case.

Citing the Fulton county welfare office as an example, he pointed out that only two of the present 19 junior clerks passed the examinations. All the rest will have to give way because an adequate register has been made up from other persons who took the test.

Boatright said the same situation existed for 60 to 70 per cent of the county's case workers and added the same ratio applied to most other counties, while about 50 per cent of the employees in the state office face loss of their jobs.

Whether you have a few suitcases or many items of furniture to be removed, you can find somebody for the job by turning to Classification 84—"Moving and Storage."

upon Kurosaki's arrival in Washington.

The Navy and Marine headquarters withheld any comment except to state that no time had been set for the proposed transfer. The President made the brief announcement in these words:

"The President said today that the United States is giving consideration to the question of withdrawal of the American Marine detachments now maintained ashore in China at Peiping, Tientsin and Shanghai."

FUTURE OF SETTLEMENT SEEN AS UNCERTAIN

SHANGHAI, Nov. 8. (Saturday) (AP)—Americans here said today President Roosevelt's contemplated withdrawal of United States Marines from China would make increasingly uncertain the future of Shanghai's International Settlement.

Since Japan's invasion of China the Marines have patrolled a big portion of the settlement. Their task of maintaining the integrity of the area has assumed greater importance since 1937 when the Japanese began showing a desire to take over control.

Pepper didn't vote on final passage or on the committee amendment, although present a short while earlier and recorded as having voted against the Clark amendment to permit arming ships but not let them go into belligerent waters.

However, it was announced that Pepper was paired for the bill and therefore was officially recorded in favor of it. On final passage he was paired with Senator Reed, Republican, Kansas, who was against the bill. A pair is an arrangement whereby a senator offsets his vote against another senator's and therefore neither needs to be present in order to have his stand recorded.

For nearly two weeks the senate had debated all the issues of foreign policy in connection with its discussion of the bill. Until today the discussion had consisted of a series of set speeches, delivered to an audience consisting usually of not more than ten senators.

There had been little excitement and virtually none of the dramatic give-and-take debate which delights the galleries.

But as evening and the final vote approached the atmosphere was infused with a tension that had been hitherto lacking.

A dramatic moment came when Senator Johnson, Republican, California, his voice taut with emotion, arose, after a suddenly hushed silence, and said:

"It's a terrible thing to take a country into war."

"This is a question, after all, of peace and war. You are entitled to any opinion you see fit in regard to this question of peace."

"I am at an age when I fully believe that any man who would take his country into war when his conscience tells him otherwise is doing the greatest disservice to his country."

With a gesture toward the Democratic membership, he implored them not to be "cajoled, threatened or in any way influenced" to vote for the legislation, against their "instincts."

The legislation, Hatch asserted, was designed to keep America out of war by keeping the war to the other side of the ocean. Whether it would keep America at peace he could not say, but it was an effort in that direction.

Senator Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, arose to oppose the bill and asserted he was "not going to vote to authorize our merchant ships" to go into the war zones.

"I would be an infamous fool to say we are going to assert that we are going to send our ships into war zones and expect the stars and stripes to be respected."

In called "Enlightenment."

WAR BIRDS OF PACIFIC—Dozens of torpedo bombing planes and fighter craft of the Navy warm up on the flight deck of an aircraft carrier somewhere in the Pacific, where the United States fleet maintains constant vigilance. Name of the aircraft carrier was not given in the release of this official U. S. Navy picture.

Senate Votes To Arm Vessels Farmer Given Life Sentence In 1932 Death

It will, regardless of the threats of Adolf Hitler.

The basis of their argument was the contention they have advanced since the beginning of months of debate, Republican Majorities and peace and security of this nation depends upon the defeat of the Nazis in Europe. To this they added the statement that the neutrality law, as it stood, was impeding this country's policy of helping Hitler's enemies.

The final vote, taken amid such confusion that Vice President Wallace was forced repeatedly to rap for order, was preceded by several other roll calls, on most of which the balloting was virtually unanimous. Senators Clegg and Russell were among those voting for the revisions.

Principally, the opposition led by Senator Clark, Democrat, Missouri, sought to narrow the legislation to a simple authorization to arm American merchant vessels, eliminating permission to enter combat zones and belligerent ports. On this issue the administration won—49 to 38.

White Goes Over. Then came the parliamentary formality of approving the bill as amended. Relations Committee amendment to the original house bill—this went through, 50 to 38. Then came the final roll call of 50 to 37.

The one vote which the opposition lost was that of Senator White, Republican, Maine. The fact that the opponents did not lose a number of ballots between roll calls came as a something of a surprise and disappointment to the administration leaders.

They had expected that several senators, after losing on the ship movements issue, would then vote for the majority's version of the bill as a matter of national unity, and for the effect of a white affirmative vote overseas. White, however, proved the only one to hold that viewpoint.

Amendments Beaten. In between these ballots, three lesser amendments were beaten. Voting 50 to 38, again, the senate turned down an effort by Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, to permit ships to enter certain belligerent ports but not pass through combat zones. On a voice vote it rejected an amendment by Senator O'Daniel, Democrat, Texas, to attach antistrike provisions to the legislation.

Then, Clark engineered a maneuver which occasioned the galleries and the senate itself some amusement. Three Republicans, Austin, Vermont; Bridges, New Hampshire, and Guernsey, South Dakota, had presented a substitute calling for the outright repeal of the neutrality act. Clark insisted on calling it "the Willie amendment." They insisted that he attach their own names to it.

"I can't blame you for disavowing Mr. Willie," said Clark. "The three have withdrawn their amendment, but Clark insisted that there be a vote upon it, asserting outright repeal was better than the 'despicable' legislation which was about to be approved. The move lost 78 to 11.

There was more sharpshooting of a personal or political nature. After the final vote had been taken, Chairman Connally, Democrat, Texas, asked how the junior senator from California had voted.

This senator, Downey, Democrat, long associated with the opposition, had announced his support of the administration because of what he considered the preponderant sentiment in his state.

Connally's inquiry developed and gave point to what he knew all along was the fact of the matter. Downey had not voted at all on final passage, although he had voted with the administration up to that point.

Not to be outdone, Senator Chavez, Democrat, New Mexico, an opponent, inquired how Senator Pepper, Democrat, Florida, had voted. Pepper has long been one of the senate's most aggressively anti-Hitler members.

Chavez, too, knew what the answer to his question would be. Pepper didn't vote on final passage or on the committee amendment, although present a short while earlier and recorded as having voted against the Clark amendment to permit arming ships but not let them go into belligerent waters.

However, it was announced that Pepper was paired for the bill and therefore was officially recorded in favor of it. On final passage he

U. S. Applies Pressure for Finnish Peace

Hull Bluntly Warns Nation To Choose Allies or Germans.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(INS)—The American government, employing the most powerful diplomatic pressure campaign in its history, tonight strove to persuade the Finnish people to break with Germany and accept a Soviet peace offer, with the United States as intermediary.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull, the State Department revealed, has flatly warned Finland that the United States will spend $75,000,000, or whatever is necessary, to defeat the Nazis.

Hull gave Finland the choice of a peace now with Russia, under which she would retain the friendship and protection of the United States, Great Britain and the Soviet Union, or to continuing the war on the side of Germany and becoming the enemy of those countries pitting their might against Hitlerism.

Every Resource.

The determination of this government to use every resource at its command to defeat Hitlerism, and the Soviet peace offer tonight was being made plain to the Finnish people through powerful short-wave broadcasts to Finland in the Finnish language.

The Soviet disposition to discuss peace with Finland, under which territorial concessions would be made by Russia, was first communicated to the Finnish government by Washington on August 18. No reply has yet been received.

Blunt Warning.

Hull's blunt warning to Finland was part of a general campaign by the United States, Britain and Russia to get Finland out of the war and which saw these parallel developments:

1. President Roosevelt announced the granting of a $1,000,000 lend-lease credit to Russia under which a flood of American war supplies are already being sent by every available means to the embattled Russian armies.

2. Mr. Roosevelt, in an address yesterday, declared that the "American people have an unlimited commitment" to defeat Hitlerism.

3. Premier Josef Stalin, in two successive radio addresses to the world on the occasion of the twenty-fourth anniversary of the U. S. S. R., declared Russia will fight to the end and that Germany is "bleeding to death" and faces disaster in a year.

Churchill Optimistic.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill today, lauding the Russian resistance to the German invasion, declared that England has passed safely through its darkest hour and will still be fighting at issue. Hitler and his satellites are pleading for peace.

Hull's warning to Finland was contained in a conference he held with the Finnish minister, Hjalmar Procopé, on October 3, urging that Finland accept Russia's proffer of a separate peace. The question at issue, Hull said, is not whether one likes or dislikes Hitler or Stalin, but "relates to the future safety of the United States and of all peaceful countries of the world."

'Ed' Venable, Atlanta Cafe Board To Air Case Against State Trooper

Charges of 'Politics' May Get Hearing in December.

Suspension of Corporal W. E. McDuffie, of the Swainsboro station of the State Highway Patrol, allegedly because he arrested the kinsman of a strong supporter of the Governor on charges of drunk driving, will be aired at a hearing before the State Board of Public Safety, probably in December, it developed yesterday.

Major John E. Goodwin, head of the patrol, confirmed the fact that Corporal McDuffie had been suspended October 27 for "an act unbecoming an officer."

At this, it developed, grew out of McDuffie's arrest of John A. Donaldson, a Summit farmer, on drunken driving charges. Donaldson was convicted in the city court of Swainsboro and fined $100. But Donaldson's brother-in-law was quoted as telling the trial judge that rather than pay the $100 fine he would see his "personal friend," the Governor.

Major Goodwin said the Governor had turned over to him an affidavit signed by Baggett declaring he was "with Donaldson at the time he was arrested and Donaldson was not drinking."

The Governor's only comment was that "when you get the right one you stir up plenty of fire."

A Swainsboro official was reported to have told the Governor he "ought to come down and pick up your friends before you go to the expense of trying them."

A group of Swainsboro citizens strongly protested the suspension of McDuffie and asked for his reinstatement.

Love Will Come Again

Drusilla Wrecks Hill's Apartment; Announces Engagement to Band Leader

By Alma Sioux Scarberry.

INSTALLMENT XXXVII.

That got under Hill's skin more than anything she could have said to him. He shot out at her angrily.

"I had no intention of being your gigolo. I'm hardly the type," Drusilla yelled. "With her music school. While you played golf and ran around having a good time. You can't deny that! Deny it!"

Hill turned livid: "Don't forget my parents left an estate. I could afford to play for a few years on that. I'm not trying to excuse myself for not having more ambition. But all that has changed. I'm going to make up for it. Hillier is going to work."

"In a pig's eye!" Drusilla yelled childishly. "I've a fancy picture of you working your fingers to the bone."

Hill got up. "Dru," he said as patiently as he could. "Will you please go home and let me go to work? There's no use in discussing this thing any further. You know how I feel."

Dru whirled, and before Hill realized what she was about to do, she picked up an ash tray from the table and threw it at his head. It glanced off the side of his ear, merely grazing it. Hill backed away, shouting at the frantic woman:

"Stop it, you little fool! Stop it!"

But Drusilla Bayne had no intention of stopping. Next she grabbed a vase from the table and it landed at his feet to crash into a hundred little pieces. For the next few minutes everything was bedlam. Fortunately, Hill's apartment was sound-proof and no one outside heard the commotion.

Dru ran around the room like a maniac, throwing everything she could lay her hands on. Hill managed to get behind the hall door without serious mishap. He breathed easier, but his heart pounded furiously as Drusilla proceeded to systematically wreck the place.

Hill was afraid to try to stop her, because he did not want to be accused of beating her. There was no doubt if he laid a hand on her she would accuse him of trying to murder her in his apartment, for the benefit of the newspaper headlines.

When Drusilla could find nothing else to throw, she grabbed up her hat and coat and ran from the room, swearing that Hill would hear from her later. He came from behind the door, viewing the wreckage ruefully. Even the plans on his desk were torn to shreds.

A little fearfully Hill bought newspapers the next day fully expecting to find a wild story given up to Drusilla to the press. Up to late afternoon there was nothing.

But the morning tabloids carried pictures of the "Blonde Bomb" shell" and the band leader, on the front pages. They had eloped to Virginia by airplane, to be married. Hill was weak with relief as he realized how easily he had escaped from Drusilla Bayne. She had married Jock to save her face, which was all very fortunate for Hill.

It didn't matter that his apartment was a shambles. The damaged things were all his, and he could well afford to pay that price for his release. Whistling almost cheerfully Hill packed up and moved across the street from April's apartment to Douglass, where he could be near Kenny.

Spring was in the air the day a few weeks later, when April was brought back home. Dr. Malcolm had decided it was best to keep the truth from her, and she had not been told the doctors felt that there was no hope that she would ever walk again.

Cherry and Gay were with April in the ambulance when it drove up in front of the apartment. Hill watched from his room across the street, as two men and a white-capped nurse took the stretcher from the ambulance. Finally he turned away because the sight was too much for him to bear.

Hyacinthe stood in the doorway, wiping her tears with the big, white apron she always wore. Kenny ran down the steps yelling joyfully:

"Mommy, Mommy!" Oh, here comes my mommy!"

April was wrapped in blankets, so that even her white, drawn face could scarcely be seen.

"Oh, hurry!" she urged the men who carried the stretcher. "I can't wait! Kenny, darling, Mommy will kiss you in just a little minute."

Cherry and Gay were both weeping tears mixed with both joy and grief. The homecoming was clouded with the tragic thought that some day April must be chained to a wheelchair.

They carried April's stretcher into the bedroom and Miss Sayers, the nurse, supervised the two men who lifted her gently and placed her in one of the soft twin beds in her own blue and gold room.

"Oh," April sighed, "this is heavenly. I'd forgotten how comfortable my own bed could be."

Kenny climbed up and kissed his mother and she held him close and April's tears dampened his rugged little face. Hyacinthe kissed her next on the cheek and the old colored woman's round face was conical in its mixed picture of happiness and sorrow.

"Dis is de happiest day of mah whole life," Hyacinthe cried. "De lawd done answered mah prayers an' brought mah baby home to her ole mammy. Bless de lawd!"

Miss Sayers decided her patient had had enough excitement for the time being and so she said firmly but kindly:

"I'm afraid you'll have to run along for a little while now and let Mrs. Hillier rest."

Kenny's chin quivered. "Me—and found that no two of them ever lived in the same town. The reason was they didn't trust each other.

An expert is like the old school teacher scolding his class. He said: "Boys, I've told you everything I know and still you don't know nothing."

I wish the experts would pull in their necks and let Europe fight in peace.

Miss Sayers smiled at Kenny gently, relenting.

"If you are a very, very quiet boy, I'll let you sit beside your mommy's bed and hold her hand a little while. Maybe you can put her to sleep. But you mustn't talk."

Kenny grinned happily: "Oh, thank you. I'll be very quiet. I'll be your 'sistant, won't I?"

Miss Sayers smiled: "You certainly will. You can help me a lot. Now you sit here."

April gave him her hand, closing her eyes tightly.

"I know Mommy can rest now, darling, with you here to take care of her. We'll talk about lots of things later. I've so many things to ask you."

"Sh-h, quiet Mommy," Kenny whispered. "You mustn't talk. Sh-h close your eyes."

Much to Miss Sayers' surprise the weary patient fell asleep with Kenny's hand in hers. From her breathing, and the look of contentment on her face, Miss Sayers knew it was the most restful nap April had enjoyed since her accident. Even though she slept for an hour Kenny refused to budge from her side. His small arm was numb from the one position when April opened her eyes.

"Why, darling!" she said surprised, "have I really been asleep?"

"For six or seven hours," Kenny stood up, stretching.

"He wouldn't get up," Miss Sayers smiled. "You'd better run along and take the kinks out of your legs and arms, honey," the nurse advised. "Isn't it about your supper time?"

Kenny ran from the room with alacrity. Having had quite enough of sitting in one spot. Even if it was beside his beloved mother's bed.

Gay came in a little later.

"Why don't you take a little rest?" she suggested to Miss Sayers. "Or go for a walk? I'd like to talk a little while with your patient, if I may."

"I'd love a little air," the nurse got up from her chair. "And I want to talk with the maid about Mrs. Hillier's diet."

When Miss Sayers had gone out and closed the door, Gay bent over April, kissing her cheek.

"Oh, darling!" she choked. "You don't know what it means to me to see you out of the hospital."

"You can't know what it means to me," April sighed. "Imagine being home again."

Gay sat down. "Curt wanted so much to have you taken directly to Pennyhaven," she said. "He's worried about whether you'll have everything you need here. Why don't you marry him now, April? He's heart-broken because you won't."

April shook her head firmly. "No, Gay, I can't do that! I'll never marry until I can walk. Do you think I would be such a burden to Curt? It wouldn't be fair to him. Oh, don't you understand?"

Gay turned her face away. "Oh, but I think you're wrong, dear. All he asks is the right to take care of you."

"He's an angel," April's eyes filled. "But I can't. Gay, you wouldn't! I know you wouldn't!"

Gay's chin trembled: "I wouldn't if it were anybody but Curt," she said, stifled. "He's so different from any other men, darling. He has such a great heart."

"That's just it," April stirred restlessly. "I don't want any man to marry me because he pities me. I couldn't bear it. Please make him understand."

Atlanta Man On Hobby Hour At 8:30 Today

"Hit Parade," Jessica Dragonette Provide Music for Listeners.

Dick Hull, noted Atlanta dairy official, whose hobby is building hospitals, a collector of strange advertisements and a collector of fire-fighting apparatus are Dave Elman's guests on "Hobby Lobby" over CBS and WGST tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

Margaret Whiting makes her second appearance as songstress on "Your Hit Parade." Four Chicagoans discuss the "World After the War" on "People's Platform," and Jimmy Dorsey's orchestra plays at "Meadowbrook Matinee."

Lockwood Barr, of New York, who collects strange advertisements, and Lawrence Clark, of Boston, Mass., who collects pictures of ancient fire-fighting apparatus, head the list of Dave Elman's guests on "Hobby Lobby."

Harry Salter's orchestra provides the music.

Margaret Whiting, California's recent contribution to the ranks of "Your Hit Parade" entertainers, makes her second appearance as vocal soloist. (WGST at 9 p. m.). Together with Mark Warnow's orchestra, master of ceremonies Barry Wood and the "Hit Parade" chorus, she presents the nation's 10 favorite popular songs of the week, selected in a nation-wide survey.

Four Chicagoans meet with Lyman Bryson, chairman of the CBS Adult Education Board, on "People's Platform" to discuss the "World After the War." (WGST at 7 p. m.).

Columbia network presents "Saturday Night Serenade," with Soprano Jessica Dragonette singing "Viva," from "The Merry Widow" and "Coming Through the Rye," over WGST at 9:45 p. m. Tenor Bill Terry sings "Cielito Lindo" and "Home on the Range." Gus Haechen's orchestra opens the program with "A Gay Ranchero" and follows later with the old favorite, "The Band Played On." The Serenaders' chorus sings "Two in Love" and the entire cast concludes the program with "A Pretty Co-ed."

It's Jimmy Dorsey's orchestra that beats out the rhythm on Columbia's network's "Matinee at Meadowbrook" today following the appearance of brother Tommy Dorsey, over WGST at 5 p. m. The program is directed by Perry Lafferty, with Bert Parks as master of ceremonies.

Black Plays Rare Beethoven Work

One of Beethoven's most neglected works, the Triple Concerto, Op. 56, will be played on the Frank Black Presents program today over the NBC-Blue network from 9:30 to 10 p. m. The three soloists will be Mischa Mischakoff, concert-master of the NBC Symphony Orchestra; Frank Miller, first cellist of the same orchestra, and Arthur Balsam, pianist.

The only concerto Beethoven wrote for more than one instrument, the "Triple Concerto," was dedicated to Archduke Rudolph, of Austria.

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—An excellent day to contact clever and progressive people. A good day for putting into effect new plans that have been carefully worked out. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 12 p. m.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—Your judgment, especially in connection with financial affairs, shows relative wisdom and stability. However, such care should be given to traveling, to signing contracts and papers that call for your signature.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Previous to 12:45 p. m. favors new beginnings, new methods, progressive ideas, but after 12:45 p. m. be careful that you are not dictatorial, positive and determined.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—The period previous to 12:30 p. m. favors dealing with the public, publishing and work that requires detail. The remainder of the day will prove better by sticking to routine.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—The entire day is inclined to be tactful that will better your credit, your career and your business. However, such care should be given to traveling, to signing contracts and papers that call for your signature.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—Before 12:30 p. m. keep away from impatient desires and scrutinize carefully any new project that may be brought to you for a decision at this time. Between 12:30 p. m. and 4:30 p. m. is an excellent period for advanced educational ideas. After 4:30 p. m. favors sticking to routine matters.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—The combined influences today supply inspiration that is favorable to financial interests, making personal decisions, contacting superiors as well as general business activities. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 3 p. m.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—The combined influences today supply inspiration that is favorable to financial interests, making personal decisions, contacting superiors as well as general business activities. The best aspects of the day operate previous to 3 p. m.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—The dominating influences through 4 p. m. tend to reflect progress and completion of things may be delayed beyond the time expected. After 4 p. m. extra care should be used around machinery.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—An excellent day to put your best foot forward. The day favors consultations, financial interests, educational matters, experiments and sociability.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—The day does not especially favor new beginnings or assuming added responsibilities. The best aspects of the day operate between 11:30 a. m. and 3:00 p. m.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—The day does not especially favor new beginnings or assuming added responsibilities. The best aspects of the day operate between 11:30 a. m. and 3:00 p. m.

SWANSON ON AIR.

Gloria Swanson, lovely lady of silent and talking movies, stars in a romantic drama on "Armstrong's Theater of Today" today at 12 m. over WGST. Miss Swanson is in New York for a month's vacation following completion of her first motion picture in years, "Father Takes a Wife."

TALKS ON TAXES.

To advise Americans what their individual tax loads are likely to be for the current year, Under Secretary of the Treasury, Daniel W. Bell will talk on "Know Your Taxes" today at 10:15 p. m. over the NBC-Red network and WSB.

IRKED CABBIES IN SUN.

Montreal's famous horse cabies, who for 60 years have parked around the northern half of Dominion Square, where they got tourist patronage and kept their horses in the shade, are bitter because the city council ordered them into the sun.

'Better-Halves' Plant Shrubs And Rose Bushes Tomorrow

By SALLY FORTH.

IF YOU HAPPEN to be driving out East Brookhaven drive tomorrow afternoon, and see a group of husky young men planting shrubs and rose bushes, don't think some irate garden lover is taking advantage of the Sabbath by hiring help for that special work. Instead, it will be husbands of the members of the Flower Study Club, who will be pressed into service for the beautification of the club's pet project—a plot opposite the twelfth green of the Capital City Country Club golf club.

Members of the club, headed by Mrs. Chess Lagomarsino, have been working on the plot for some time, and when the time came for real labor required to plant the large shrubs and rose bushes, they decided to call in their husbands for the job. As a result, husbands will don work clothes and begin work tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. If the planting goes off as scheduled, the last plant should be in position by 5 o'clock.

And the wives are not going to let their husbands go unpaid for their job. For, after work is over, they will be honored at a steak fry at the home of Mrs. Frank Tucker, vice president of the club, who lives on Winall Down road. It goes without saying that the men will be ready for such a piece of resistance as a fat, juicy steak.

The Flower Study Club was organized three years ago, and is all the name implies, for members are devoted students of flower cultivation and flower history. In addition to Mrs. Lagomarsino and Mrs. Tucker, other officers are Mrs. Milburn Hopkins, secretary; Mrs. Shack Wimish, treasurer, and Mrs. Robert McKay, parliamentarian.

THE NAME of Will L. Messersmith, on the program of the Pulitzer prize play, "There Shall Be No Night," which is being presented here this week, stirred the interest of a number of Atlantans. The young actor, a cousin of Mrs. Albert Alexander, of this city, the former Phoebe Yancey, of Rome, and has many friends made upon frequent visits here.

Will has been starred with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne for the past three years, and is a gifted actor whose future in the theatrical world looms brighter with each performance. He is a native of Glenridge, N. J.

Phoebe Alexander's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hewlett, were hosts at an informal dinner party Thursday evening at the Georgian Terrace hotel for the young actor.

Critic To Speak To Prose Group.

Mrs. R. B. Church Jr., whose book reviews in local department store restaurants have attracted crowds, will tell the prose group how to write book reviews, when this branch of the Atlanta Writers' Club meets Sunday afternoon. The meeting takes place at 3 o'clock at the home of Miss Frank Taylor, 458 North Highland avenue, N. E. Members are requested to bring book review manuscripts for criticism. Visitors are invited; those planning to attend are requested to notify the hostess, Walnut 9728.

The christening robe also was worn by Sylvia's little brother, Ben Hutchinson Jr., when he was christened.

MISS CAROLINE YUNDT.

Autumn Colors Adorn Club For Miss Yundt's Debut Party

Bronze and white chrysanthemums and colorful autumn leaves predominated in the decorations when Miss Caroline Yundt made her debut last evening, at a supper-dance at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Yundt, were hosts at the important social event at which several hundred of the unmarried set assembled to meet the charming debutante.

Mr. and Mrs. Yundt and their daughter received their guests in the reception room which was beautifully decorated with white chrysanthemums placed in silver vases, with stately palms forming the background for the receiving line. Mrs. John A. Boykin, Mrs. Edwin Yancey and Mrs. Robert Quinn, maternal aunts of Miss Yundt, assisted the hosts in entertaining.

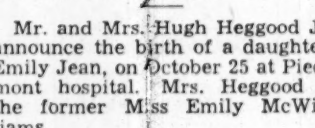

Bronze chrysanthemums and palms decorated the foyer where soft drinks and milk were served. The entrance to the ballroom was gained through an enclosed passage leading from the reception room onto the terrace. The ballroom was made festive with autumn leaves entwined around the white columns which range the length of both sides of the room. Clusters of bronze chrysanthemums topped the columns, and vases filled with bronze chrysanthemums adorned the mantelpiece.

The damask-covered buffet tables were centered with silver vases holding Primula, which is known as red-hot poker. White tapers glowed in silver candelabra and silver and crystal completed the appointments.

Mrs. Yundt was handsomely gowned in blue lame and she wore orchids on her shoulder. Miss Yundt's brunet loveliness was offset by a creation of white net posed over white taffeta, and trimmed with ermine tails.

The becoming net cape was trimmed with ermine tails and she carried a bouquet of white orchids. Miss Yundt is vice president of the 1941-42 Debutante Club.

Miss Edith Nugent, of Louisville, Ky., a classmate of Miss Yundt at Bradford College in Massachusetts, was numbered among the visiting belles attending the brilliant ball.

Miss Jane Osburn Will Be Honored

Covers will be placed for Misses Osburn, Constance Knowles, Elizabeth Groves, Selma Wight, Mesdames William Mason, Britt Pennington, Robert Chambers, Gordon Kiser, George Archer and the hosts.

The table will be decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums carrying out a harvest theme and the place cards will be of similar design.

Chapel Guild Plans Spaghetti Supper.

Following the usual custom, the Sacred Heart Chapel Guild inaugurated plans for its annual spaghetti supper at a dinner complementing the men's auxiliary recently. Mrs. Frank M. White, president of the guild, assisted by Mrs. Reuben L. Watkins, chairman, and a committee composed of other officers of the organization, provided the dinner.

The speakers were the Very Rev. William J. Loneragan, S. M., pastor of the Sacred Heart church, and Thomas J. Gilmore.

Committees were formed and plans made for entertainment at the spaghetti supper, which will be held in the Sacred Heart parochial school auditorium Tuesday evening, November 18. Ticket chairman is Mrs. R. W. Bowling, HE. 4340.

Mrs. de Wells Hostess at Tea.

An informal affair of yesterday afternoon was the tea given by Mrs. N. B. Dolinoff de Wells, who entertained at her home on Baltimore Block.

Forty guests gathered for the affair and enjoyed tea in the dining room which was beautifully decorated with colorful chrysanthemums. In the drawing room an effective arrangement of dried material was arranged in an imported Italian china shell.

Winners Announced.

The third annual fall flower show of the Garden Study Club of Decatur was held recently at the home of Mrs. O. M. Sims. The sweepstakes prizes were won by Mrs. Carr Suter, first; Mrs. Margaret Russell, second, and Mrs. L. R. Jesse, third.

Parties Honor Miss Cosgrove

Miss Margaret Boulineau entertained recently at a buffet supper in compliment to Miss Mary Cosgrove and her fiancé, Mr. Bruce MacGregor Jr., whose marriage will be a social event of next Tuesday at the Cathedral of Christ the King.

The affair took place at the hostess' home on Huntingwood road, and assisting in entertaining was her father, Edward Boulineau; her cousin, Miss Ellen Sullivan, and Miss Mary Boulineau.

The buffet table was overlaid with an imported lace cloth and centered by a silver epergne filled with a cascade arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums. Flanking this were silver candelabra holding tapers.

Guests were Misses Cosgrove, Angelyn Collins, Theresa Harrison, Mary Hoch, Kathleen Scruggs, Mary Boulineau, Mary Bean, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Collins Jr. and Mrs. Bronson W. Eaton, Joseph Connolly, Joseph W. Vignaux, Dan Cosgrove, Knox McKamey, Vincent Kane and Bruce MacGregor.

Mrs. W. J. Griffin entertained yesterday at a luncheon in the Paradise Room of the Henry Grady hotel in compliment to the bride-elect.

Today the bride-elect will be entertained at a luncheon and miscellaneous shower by Mrs. Joseph E. Collins Jr. at her home on Briarcliff road. The hostess will be assisted in entertaining by her sister, Miss Angelyn Collins.

A milk glass soup tureen filled with colorful autumn flowers will form the centerpiece for the luncheon table. Other appointments on the table will be of milk glass. Covers will be laid for Misses Cosgrove, Angelyn Collins, Margaret Boulineau, Mary Bean, Theresa Harrison and Mesdames Fred Denny, Bronson W. Eaton and Joseph E. Collins.

This evening, Miss Mary Bean, who will be the maid of honor in the forthcoming nuptials, will entertain for the bride and groom-elect at a dinner in the Rainbow Room of the Ansley hotel. The guests will be limited to the bride party.

On Monday evening, the groom-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. MacGregor, will entertain at a buffet supper preceding the wedding rehearsal. The guests will include the bridal party, members of the families and the out-of-town guests.

Recent parties honoring the popular couple include that at which Mrs. Charles E. Rushin entertained the bride-elect at the Paradise Room of the Henry Grady.

Sunday evening, the bridal couple was honored by Mrs. Arthur Connolly at a steak fry at her home on Kingsboro road. The hostess was assisted in entertaining by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Cosgrove, and her sister, Mrs. Frank Coleman.

Friars Club Members Give Party Today.

Members are Rodney Cook, David Blackshear, Harry Dean, Bill Daniel, Barton Gause, Bill Gaston, Julius Hanahan, Bill Magbee, Alfred Scogin, Alan Stanford, James Starr, John Tyler, Jimmy Seagars, Sidney Vickman, Danny Zoll, Tommy Thompson and Howell Hunt.

Their dates are Misses Marie Boomersbine, Anne Anderson, Virginia Wright, Lane Winslip, the sponsor; Jane Hailey, Fran Ward, Peggy Peace, Colleen Owens, Katherine Willingham, Jacqueline Pope, Mary Ann Bramgart, Betty Williams, Lewis Camp, Harriet Hare, Palmour Holmes, Mildred Carpenter, Clara Jones, Jane McKinzie and Tatty Shipp.

For Lieut. Betts And Miss Travis.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Betts entertained a party at their home on Linwood avenue last evening following the wedding rehearsal of their son, Lieutenant Paul H. Betts and Miss Elizabeth Travis.

Miss Salome Betts, of New York, and Mrs. E. A. Hall, of Chester, S. C., assisted in entertaining the guests, who included members of the Betts-Travis wedding personnel and the immediate families.

A graceful arrangement of rose-shaded roses and chrysanthemums in a crystal bowl centered the lace-covered buffet table. Silver candelabra holding lighted cream tapers flanked the centerpiece.

The marriage of Miss Travis and Lieutenant Betts will be solemnized at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride-elect's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Jones, in Decatur.

Shower Is Given For Miss Landers.

Complimenting Miss Louise Landers, whose marriage to Carroll Sappington will take place this month, the Belle Bennett Class entertained recently at a surprise miscellaneous shower given at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Felix Sibley on Myrtle street, Hapeville.

Invited were Misses Landers, Annie Ball, Elizabeth Ball, Eloise Chapman, Mary Chapman, Ealon Elliott, Ruth Chapman, Lily Hill, Gene Holt, Barbara Lee, Bessie Lee, Nina Royal, Mildred Schenck, Elizabeth Lisle, Mattie Hughes, Penelope Hughes, Mesdames R. ## Assisting List Announced For Miss Hodgson's Debut

A group of prominent Atlantans will assist on Tuesday afternoon at the reception to be given by Mrs. Joseph L. Hodgson at her home on Parkside drive at which time she will introduce her debutante daughter, Miss Mary Logan Hodgson, to society. Several hundred invitations have been issued to the affair, which will be the first of the debut parties scheduled for next week.

Miss Hodgson and her mother will receive, and assisting will be Misses Clare Hewlett, Josephine McDougall, Frances Cundell, Margaret Harmon, Margaret Winslip, Frances Alston, Gertrude Spratt, Clara Jones, Ann Anderson, Carolyn Reed, Ruth Powell, of the Philippine Islands; Mary Tiller Lewis, Selma Wight and Mesdames John Cherry, Frances Mitchell, E. Rivers, Bolling 'ones Jr., Carl Dodd, J. Goodrum Norris and Ella Goodrum Norris, of Newnan; P. D. Yates, Luther Rosser, G. L. Morton, Alonzo M. Norris, Joseph Winslip, Winter Alfriend, Marion Bleakley, J. C. Robards, Thomas L. Barber, Joseph B. rton, Fredrick G. Hodgson, Edwin Pusey, of Athens; Howard Harmon, Calhoun McDougall, Anita Stewart Armstrong, W. Ott Alston, Thomas Powell and Misses Nancy Hopkins and Mary Goodrum, of Newnan.

One hundred members of society were invited to meet Miss Hodgson and Miss Betty Hoyt, another debutante, at tea given yesterday by Mrs. Luther Allen at her home on Hahersham road. The home was beautifully throughout with artistic arrangements of yellow and white chrysanthemums. The tea table was overlaid with a lace cloth and centered with a handsome soup tureen filled with bronze and yellow chrysanthemums. Flanking this were silver candelabra holding lighted yellow tapers.

Receiving with the hostess and the two honor guests were Mrs. Joseph Hodgson and Mrs. George Hoyt, mothers of the debutantes, and presiding at the tea and coffee services were Mrs. William Armstrong, Mrs. William Davis, Mrs. Walter Garrard and Mrs. Charles Wolf.

Assisting in entertaining were Misses Margaret Winslip, Nell Winslip, Evelyn Block, Nancy McLarty, Ann Skidmore, Virginia and Marion Barr, Frances Alston and Mesdames Walter Ross, Earl Meyer, W. Ott Alston, Joseph Winslip and Harrison Hines. Miss Corrie Hoyt received the card at the door.

Miss Virginia Richardson, another popular debutante, was also honored yesterday at the morning coffee given by Miss Mary Matthews.

Autumn flowers featured the decorations throughout the reception rooms, and the guests included a group of close friends.

Miss Nancy McLarty's steak fry, given at her home on Wieuca road, was a complimentary gesture to Miss Caroline Yundt. Mrs. John A. Boykin gave a luncheon recently for her niece, Miss Yundt, at the Piedmont Driving Club. Pink and white flowers placed in silver epergnes adorned the center of the table and the pink and white color motif was reflected in the appointments.

Atlanta Woman's Club Plans To Observe Birthday Monday

The business-program meeting of the Atlanta Woman's Club will be held Monday with Mrs. Howard Pattillo presiding. The club will celebrate its 46th birthday and the president will be assisted by Mrs. Conway Hunter, first vice president and program chairman, and Mrs. A. B. Brown, literature chairman; Miss Annis Humphries and Mrs. Louis L. Williams, officers of the club, and Mrs. M. L. Throver, hospitality chairman, and her committee.

Miss Kathryn Johnson, readers' advisor of Carnegie Library, will talk on "Books to Read Today." Mrs. B. C. Settle will sing, accompanied by Mrs. P. V. Ball.

The program will be in keeping with National Book Week and the following authors of books of prose have been invited as special guests: Virginia Clair, Beatrice Jefferson, Mildred Seydell, Minnie Hite Moody, Medora Perkerson, Margaret Mitchell, Elise Boylston, Gladys Blake, Elizabeth Barnitz, Dean Raimundo de Olives and Harry Lee. Other guests include Mrs. Helen K. Barnshaw, librarian of Lawson General hospital; Mrs. Lillian Church, literature chairman of Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, and Miss Para Lee Brock, educational director of radio station WATL.

Of special interest is the two-fold schedule adopted by the literature department for the year: a literary emphasis for the members of the club under the slogan, "Reading for Relaxation in the Defense Program;" and a defense service in sponsoring of the new library of Lawson General hospital. Members are asked to contribute either to a fund to purchase books, or to bring a book for Lawson Library; the book to be either a new one or selected from the individual's library, to be shared with the boys in service.

Anne Shirley is ready for the kick-off in new pumpkin yellow with a slate gray plaid. On the right, Jane Wyatt's white wallaby coat is lined with bright red flannel. Her sleeveless jerkin and gored skirt are corduroy—college favorite this year—in Christmas green. The blouse, a wool jersey, is in Christmas red. Jane's hat—a bit on the stocking cap side—is green jersey. For a final touch of gaiety, the slash pockets in her coat are outlined in green flannel bound in red rickrack.

MY DAY A Reader Expresses Fear for Business

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY, Thursday.—Yesterday was a very pleasant day. I gave two lectures, one at the Town Hall in New York City in the morning and one in Elizabeth, N. J., in the evening. In between times, I lunched with my cousin, Mrs. Henry Parish, and did a little Christmas shopping and a number of personal things which I have not had time to do in Washington.

Today is going to be a busier day, but still I never have quite the same schedule when I am away from Washington. I go to Town Hall this morning at 11 o'clock to repeat as nearly as possible the lecture I gave yesterday, but since I speak from notes, I never can give exactly the same talk.

Afterwards I lunch with the board of trustees of the Town Hall, and the program sounds both varied and interesting. I am glad that my own part will take only ten minutes, for I shall be able to enjoy all the others.

I received a rather pathetic letter from a woman who runs one of the small specialty shops in New York City. She sells dresses and millinery, and I imagine such things as costume jewelry, bags and accessories of all kinds. She is worried for fear that a wave of economy will sweep over our people and that small businesses such as hers will be ruined.

She says they do not want charity, they want to earn a living, and they want to keep their people at work, many of whom have been with them for several years.

There are, undoubtedly, going to be economies practiced along many lines, but perhaps these small businesses, as well as bigger ones, will be able to find ways in which they can adapt themselves to the making of certain things needed on defense. They should apply at once to bureaus set up in Washington under OPM, for the purpose of giving them advice and consideration.

Many of their employees may have to go into defense industries. If we go into high gear in defense production, there will, undoubtedly, be a shift in the type of employment which many people have, and a more general possibility of employment for people of middle age, as well as for young people without experience.

Classic Design With Original Detail

By Lillian Mae.

PATTERN 4922.

The secret of charm is to make a popular style your very own by original detail. . . . Pattern 4922 by Lillian Mae is an example!

This shirtwaist dress has classic lines in the side pleats of the skirt in front, the panel in back, the set-in belt; but has unique detail in the bodice. The unusual vestee with the link closing is topped by pointed revers—the effect being striking in stripes, or when the vestee, revers, and sleeve bands are made of contrast fabric. Ricrac may also be used. Let the sewing instructor help you to make several versions for everyday wear in cotton or wool, with short, three-quarter, or long sleeves. This frock is perfect on the larger figure. . . . order it right away!

Pattern 4922 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3 7/8 yards 35-inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Problem Of An Over-Anxious Suitor

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:

Can you give me a break on how to win the love of a boy? He is very strange. I have dated him several times, and we enjoy each other's company. On our last date he asked me why I never gave him a chance to prove that he loved me. I do not seem to understand him, for I give him dates and what more can I do? I like him very much, and he is a nice boy.

He does not drink or have any bad habits. I also have a friend in another state whom I have dated for almost two years. He has asked me to marry him. I see him about every six weeks, but he has almost killed my love for him by drinking. I told him I might make up my mind to marry him some time, but I really do like my new friend, so what must I do, forget both boys and try to find new ones? WORRIED MIND.

I see no reason to forget either of the two boys. If you like them, you can certainly continue having dates with them and have a good time. If he keeps coming to see you and seems to admire you, why worry? Do not take your new friend too seriously. Do not run after him, but try to arrange to be where he is and to be interested in the things he is interested in. Congeniality is very important as is propinquity. As for the other boy, if you do not love him, I would forget about the marriage angle. Before you marry, you must be perfectly sure of your love. You do not appear to be, so forget marriage for the present.

LET BOY KNOW WHERE YOU STAND.

Dear Dixie:

I am rather young but about the age other girls start having dates. The boy I have been going with has joined the Army. I have known him for almost three years and have dated him quite a bit during that time. We have been writing all of the time he has been in the Army and when he comes home, I go out with him. My people like him very much. He has told me again and again that he loves me, and I believe him, but I have told him that I did not love him. He insists upon dating me when he comes home and also writes me. I want you to tell me if I should keep on writing to him and dating him when he comes home. I date other boys, and I think he dates other girls. He gives me very expensive gifts. Now that I do not love him, what must I do? I do not think it would hurt anything to continue writing him, do you? As I am young I thought it would be all right to go on with him when he comes home, but not be tied down to him or to anyone else. Should I write him, date him and keep his gifts if I do not love him?

PUZZLED MIND.

Of course you do not have to be in love with every boy you go with, so why not continue being friends with the soldier boy and have dates with him and write him? If you like him, I see no reason for you to stop having dates with him. As for the gifts, if he wants to give them to you, knowing that you do not love him, then let him continue. At least you are being fair about it. The best thing for you to do is to let him know exactly how you feel in regard to accepting the presents when you do not love him. But by all means be friendly enough to write him, and give him dates when he comes home.

A Weak Back Requires Special Care

By Ida Jean Kain.

If you have a weak back, you'd better be strong-minded about the exercises you do. It takes very little of certain types of calisthenics to give you a backache.

For you, all backward bending exercises are out and there are others which you should not attempt. These include bending down to touch your fingers to your toes, or rising from a prone position to touch your fingers to your toes. The favorite of lying on the back on the floor and raising and lowering the legs, knees stiff, is also taboo.

You can help the good work along by sitting correctly. You should sit with the backs of the hips pressed against the back of the chair, with the lower abdominal muscles pulled up. Slumping weakens your muscles.

Make a habit of keeping your back straight as you do your household work. This will save a lot of backache. In picking up articles from the floor, keep your back straight and bend your knees. If your kitchen sink or table is not exactly the right height for you, so that you neither stoop nor bend—sit on a high stool to work.

Today's streamlining exercises are worked out especially for the woman who has to be careful in her choice of exercises. You will find them excellent for overcoming sway back.

Position: Lying on back on floor, knees flexed, soles of feet on floor.

Movement: Pull upward with the lower abdominal muscles in an effort to press the small of the back down against the floor. Follow this by flexing alternate knees to chest.

Position: The same, except that you start with both knees flexed to chest.

Movement: Using your leg muscles, pull alternate knees down to chest—hard.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace

Guest: "Has Ellen learned any songs at kindergarten?" Mother: "Yes, and some day we'll visit the school and hear the children sing. Ellen is going out to play now while we visit."

Guests and children both should be spared the ordeal of having children show off their accomplishments in order to satisfy parents' pride.

M.G.M. Casts Chief Glamour Girls As Chain Restaurant Waitresses

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 7.—(INS) All travelers on the Santa Fe railroad know about the Fred Harvey eating houses established by Harvey many years ago. Many of the waitresses, selected for their beauty, married rich men. Well, a few days ago Louis B. Mayer had luncheon with Byron Harvey Sr., son of Fred Harvey, and Byron Jr., grandson of the man who established this famous chain of restaurants. The purpose, as you might have guessed, was to complete arrangements for making a movie to be called "The Harvey Girls."

M-G-M's glamour lineup—and I mean Lana Turner, Hedy Lamarr, Ruth Hussey and Pat Dane—will be seen as the waitresses who left tray-passing jobs to marry. Eleanor Griffen and William Rankin are completing the script and it is the intention of L. B. to give "The Harvey Girls" just as lavish production as the "Ziegfeld Girl" opus. I must say it is a unique idea.

Marlene Dietrich, who left the Universal lot none too happy, returns to play Cherry Malotte in "The Spoilers." Some weeks ago I printed that Charles Feldman was making a deal to bring Rex Beach's thrilling story of Alaska gold rush days to the screen with Marlene and Randy Scott. Well, this is true with the addition of John Wayne, Marlene's screen romance in "Seven Sinners," in a top spot. Frank Lloyd and Jack Kirby will produce, but Frank will not direct since he is busy with "River Lady." The classic fight in the beach story made screen history when William Farnum and the late Tom Santachi did a terrific fist battle in 1914. Tom Reed, who is scripting the beach thriller, will make the fight, which John and Randy wage, an important sequence—and he should, for it is a big moment.

Ye gods and little fishes—now it's Ginger Rogers and Henry Fonda who will do an episode in "Tales of Manhattan" for Boris Morros. The lineup for these seven distinct movies, telling the story of the dress suit, is the most star-studded array this writer, or anyone else, has ever seen since "Dinner at Eight," when Garbo, Harlow, Crawford, Beery, Barrymore and everybody else on the M-G-M lot appeared in one picture. This announcement from 20th Century-Fox sort of knocks in the head the story that Fonda would be loaned to RKO for "Pink Toes." I had heard that in exchange for Fonda, Damon Runyon might produce a picture for 20th, but apparently this is just chit-chat.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Lloyd Johnson, who married Helen Morgan a few months before her death, is in town. He says that Helen did not die penniless—that she left her mother a farm in New York and that he paid her funeral expenses and all her doctor's and nurses' bills, with the exception of $425 which the AGVA volunteered to pay because of the many benefits Helen had given during her lifetime. While here he says he will talk with Paramount about the story of her life which Buddy de Sylva plans to make. I suppose it will be necessary for Para to get permission from him and from Mrs. Morgan before they can proceed with definite plans for writing the scenario.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: June Brewster, former movie actress, and Guy McAfee, head of the Las Vegas gambling interests, are reconciling; Martha Raye and Lloyd Johnson, Helen Morgan's widow, at the Rhythm-Boogie; Doug Dawson met the plane bringing Jean Parker home from personals and they went on to Palm Springs, dispelling gossip of a rift; Constance Bennett and Mrs. Hayward, mother of the late Phil Plant, to whom Connie was once married, at Romanoffs. Mrs. Hayward had just been to see the children of Maggie Sullivan and Leland Hayward (Mrs. H.'s stepson), and she says they are so cunning. Connie was wearing costume jewelry which she proudly displayed; Dennis O'Keefe and Steffi Duna celebrating their first wedding anniversary; Barbara Hutton and Baron Goldschmidt de Rothschild at the Biarritz; Spencer Tracy has entered a house at Newport Beach to spend his vacation; Tyrone Power staked Tommy Noonan, his stand-in, to a plane trip so he could attend his sister Ann's wedding; Townsend Netcher has gone to Palm Springs to get rid of the flu; Grace Moore will be Miriam Hopkins' house guest during her stay here for the operatic season; Jack Malloy, who is convalescing in Palm Springs, is expected in town tomorrow or Friday; Jerry Bergen is the entertainer there; Lili Damita has volunteered for work with the American Red Cross—and she's devoting all her time away from the baby to her duties. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Football Visitors Inspire Parties

Mr. and Mrs. Park Taylor, of Paducah, Ky., who are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Thompson at their home on Shadowlawn avenue, will be complimented at several parties this weekend. The visitors are here to attend the Tech-Kentucky football game to be played this afternoon at Grant field.

Preceding the game, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Thompson will entertain at a breakfast at noon at their home on Peachtree road, a few close friends to be guests, and following the game, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Thompson will be hosts at a cocktail party at their home. Later in the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will be hosts to a small group at the dinner dance at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Sunday morning, Mr. and Mrs. George Sheffield will entertain at a breakfast at their home on Woodward way in compliment to the Kentuckians, and late Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Griffin will be hosts at a cocktail party at their home on West Wesley road, a small group of friends having been invited to meet the visitors, whose home town in Kentucky is also the former home of Mr. Griffith.

Woodmen Circle District Meeting.

The eleventh north Georgia district of the Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle was held recently at the Henry Grady Hotel, with Mrs. Blanche Schofield, the president, presiding. District officers and distinguished guests were presented by the district team, with the captain, Mrs. May Ola Odum, in charge.

Honor guests were Mrs. Clara B. Cassidy, national director and state manager; Mrs. Elizabeth McWaters, national representative; Mrs. Willie Belle O'Keefe, national representative; Mrs. Annie L. Byars, state vice president; Mrs. Jeanie Brown, state secretary; Mrs. Mary Louise Baumgardner, state attendant; Mrs. Emma Brooks, state president; and Miss Myrtle Hardy, state captain.

The welcome address was given by Mrs. Clara B. Cassidy, national director, and Mrs. May Ola Odum, district president. Mrs. Elizabeth McWaters, past state president of Cedar Grove No. 19, the following new members were initiated: Mrs. Bernice Chapman, for American Grove No. 217; Mrs. Essie Lee Sanders, for Maple Grove No. 87; Mrs. Gladys Garcia Cottogno, for Mary E. LaRocca Grove No. 264.

Mrs. Cassidy is in command of the eastern division for the Golden Anniversary Welfare Club. Her goal for Georgia is 700 members before 1942. The club is also the promotion of the "Home for Aged Members and Orphans," at Sherman, Texas.

The presentation of sizes offered by Mrs. Dora A. Talley, national president, for the best yearbook, including the yearbook of the year, was presented by Mrs. Jeanie Brown, for Mary E. LaRocca Grove No. 264, and third prize to Mrs. Elizabeth McWaters for Cedar Grove No. 19, given for best books in the eastern region.

Proficiency certificates and gold stars were presented to district officers who had qualified in last district convention.

The Bible was presented by the Do-A-Ta girls of American Grove No. 217, and by little Linda Anne Schofield, mascot of the north Georgia district.

Newly elected officers installed were: Mrs. Maude Withers, president; Mrs. Blanche Schofield, past president; Mrs. Beatrice Owens, vice president; Mrs. Sarah McGarity, chaplain; Mrs. Lillie Prichard, financial secretary; Mrs. Annie Jackson, public relations; Mrs. Joyner, attendant; Mrs. Yona Martin, assistant attendant; Mrs. Lillian West, junior counselor; Mrs. Lillie Sanders, first auditor; Mrs. Corrine Hutchinson, second auditor; Mrs. Helen Shearin, third auditor; Mrs. Dora A. READY FOR RODEO—Early arrivals among the ropers, riders and bullfighters for some practice yesterday at Ponce de Leon park in preparation for the championship rodeo opening at the park Monday and sponsored by the Young Matrons' Circle for the benefit of the Tallulah Falls School. Ralph Clark, fancy roper, is shown here roping Art Keller and Keller's horse at the same time. Keller is a bulldogger, calf roper, trick roper, trick rider and bull rider. The show promises chills, thrills and spills.

Riders Start Trek Into City For Big Rodeo

Show To Be Held Monday Through Friday at Ball Park.

The bronco-busting, bull-dogging rough riders from the wide open spaces of the west began their invasion of Atlanta yesterday, and Peachtree street soon will be reminiscent of the old days on the Great Plains as more cowboys and cowgirls arrive to take part in the championship rodeo opening Monday and continuing through Friday at the Ponce de Leon ball park.

The rodeo is being presented by the Young Matrons' Circle for the benefit of Tallulah Falls School. Early arrivals had a workout at the park, practicing their riding and roping. Among them were Ralph Clark, famous cowboy trick rider and trick roper, and Art Keller, a trick rider, bull rider, calf roper and bull-dogger.

Seventy-five cowboys and cowgirls, on tough, hard-bucking broncos and mean, fighting steers will compete for cash prizes offered by rodeo officials. C. L. McLaughlin, of the McLaughlin Amusement Corporation, Sarasota, Fla., producer of the rodeo, is shipping more than 200 head of wild stock here.

There will be "high school" and educated horses handled by cowgirls. Clowns and clown mules will add fun. There will be a wild horse scramble, a musical keg race, a dance of the range on horseback, calf roping, bronco riding, Brahma bull riding, bull-dogging or wild steer wrestling, and other equally exciting stunts.

Performances will begin at 8:15 o'clock each night, with a matinee at 3:15 o'clock Friday afternoon. Each show will last two hours. The show will be held at the Ponce de Leon ball park, a section of the parade will consist of mounted cowboys and cowgirls.

Tickets for the rodeo are now on sale at 52 Peachtree street, or they may be obtained from members of the Young Matrons' Circle. Telephone Mrs. George Beattie, CH. 6204; Mrs. George Griffin Jr., RA. 7204, or Mrs. Bernard Neal, CH. 5915. A special Negro section has been reserved.

It was predicted that Shepard would be chosen head of an organization to fight for repeal of the liquor law and promotion of temperance.

Admonishing "don't misinterpret my attitude because of the brevity of my statement," Bishop Arthur J. Moore asserted "Liquor has not changed. It is everything bad that we commit to them the work that we ought to do ourselves. Don't try to shift the responsibility to the reservation."

Commenting books for reading, Bishop Moore told the ministers, "Don't buy all the books you buy from authors with whom you agree. This is just another method of confirming your own prejudices. Read books by good men whether you agree with them or not."

The conference sanctioned plans of Paine College, Negro institution at Augusta, to raise $50,000 for a library to stand as a memorial to the late Bishop Warren A. Candler.

Appeal for the library campaign was presented by President E. C. Peters, of Paine College.

Georgian Accidentally Kills Ft. Bragg Soldier

PORT BRAGG, N. C., Nov. 7. (AP)—Private Joseph Carzello, 24-year-old selectee from New Haven, Conn., was killed late last night on a lonely road five miles from the reservation.

The public relations office said today he was accidentally shot by Private Weldon H. Maddox, of Augusta, Ga., when something went wrong with the magazine of Maddox's .45 caliber pistol.

Members of the Phi chapter of Georgia Tech and the Mu chapter of Emory of the Tau Epsilon Phi hold a banquet at the Georgian Terrace hotel.

The Past Officers' Club of Mrs. Ann Johnson's class of Saint Mark church entertains at a tea at the home of Mrs. Lee McNaughton, Peachtree Battle avenue, for Mrs. Richardson and officers of the class.

Officers of the Oglethorpe University Alumni Association meet for luncheon at Rich's tearoom.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Thomas entertain members of the Fellowship Bible Class of the West End Baptist Sunday school at their lodge, Camp Sylvania.

Emory Observes Day for Parents

Parents of Emory University students "looked on campus life, attended a football game and heard three speeches yesterday as part of the college's eighth annual 'Parents' Day.'

Some 200 parents took part in the program, which included "compulsory" attendance at classes and chapel exercises and prizes for being good "students."

John E. Matthews Sr., father of the student body president, spoke last night at a banquet. Marcus Bartlett, Emory alumnus, was toastmaster.

The minister told fellow clergymen of the South Georgia Methodist Conference that the task at hand was to elect legislators pledged to wipe out the alcohol control act of 1938 which repealed the 22-year-old "bone dry" statute.

L. Shepard, Fort Valley attorney and long prominent lay leader in the conference, asserted "it would surprise you to know how many church members own stock in breweries and buildings in which beer is sold. There is no Army camp or cantonment in the state of Georgia but that is in a wet county. We have been cowed and browbeaten enough in this fight. God pity us if the church has no voice of condemnation in this hour."

It was predicted that Shepard would be chosen head of an organization to fight for repeal of the liquor law and promotion of temperance.

Admonishing "don't misinterpret my attitude because of the brevity of my statement," Bishop Arthur J. Moore asserted "Liquor has not changed. It is everything bad that we commit to them the work that we ought to do ourselves. Don't try to shift the responsibility to the reservation."

Commenting books for reading, Bishop Moore told the ministers, "Don't buy all the books you buy from authors with whom you agree. This is just another method of confirming your own prejudices. Read books by good men whether you agree with them or not."

The conference sanctioned plans of Paine College, Negro institution at Augusta, to raise $50,000 for a library to stand as a memorial to the late Bishop Warren A. Candler.

Appeal for the library campaign was presented by President E. C. Peters, of Paine College.

South Is Still Only a 'Colony,' Historian Says

Northern Imperialists Blamed for Plight of Dixie.

The south was described last night as an "economic colony" which can trace its poverty to "capitalists and imperialists in the north who own the bulk of its productive property."

Dr. B. B. Kendrick, in his presidential address to the Southern Historical Association meeting here, added that a great proportion of the south's income is being drained out of the region by northern owners.

Chairman of the history department at the University of North Carolina, Dr. Kendrick said "the situation appears hopeless unless the present world revolution engulfs us and ends in the catastrophic collapse of the financial, capitalist and imperialistic system."

He said that the south has existed 300 years as a colony, he said half of that period was spent under England, "whose merchants, manufacturers and financiers were able—through terms of trade unfavorable to the south—to draw out of the region its wealth."

"The revolution," he said, "freed the south from British control and that freedom might have been permanent had the southern states after the war established a southern confederacy, instead of becoming a minority in the United States."

All in The Game

BY JACK TROY

'Open Season' JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 7.—Another football season has brought a flurry of charges of illegality, or fudging, on touchdown plays.

Old "Wrong Down" Getchell, of Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech fame, is shooting par for the course. Already he has been the chief target of another questionable maneuver. It happened only last Saturday when Northwestern's Lynn Waldorf charged backfield in motion on Minnesota's late tally.

It's the first "gripe" Waldorf has ever made publicly. So, while Getchell protests there was nothing wrong, fans still will wonder.

Raymond Johnson, Nashville Tennessean, charged Tulane's fourth touchdown against Vanderbilt was illegal. I rather imagine Johnson, in view of the final score, simply was pointing out how the rules are being busted, rather than attempting to alibi for Vanderbilt.

Many observers failed to take it that way, however. A columnist down in Daytona Beach, where they don't have college football, picked up Johnson's plaint and subjected it to a bit of ridicule.

"The ultimate height in futility (the columnist wrote) finally has been attained by a sports writer in Nashville, a sterling gentleman by the name of Raymond Johnson, who undoubtedly is kind to children, liked by dumb animals, and votes a straight Democratic ticket—but definitely is on the pathetic side when it comes to making up an alibi for his favorite Vanderbilt Commodores.

"Johnson has discovered that the Tulane Green Wave's fourth touchdown—get that, the fourth—against Vandy was illegal.

"And, if you didn't remember, the final score of that ball game was 34-14 in favor of the Tulane.

"Worrying about one illegal touchdown in a game like that is like the occupant of the electric chair who was upset because his trousers weren't pressed."

Like a lot of football officials and husbands, Raymond Johnson probably is misunderstood.

Flagrant Trick I am not going to get involved in any controversies over what's right or wrong in football, but I will say that I saw one of the season's best tricks pulled not so very long ago. It led directly to a touchdown. This team, which I won't mention, sent the fullback out for a flat pass. Preceding the fullback was a blocker who knocked down the opposing wingback while the ball was still very much in the air. The fullback simply caught the toss and sold out. The safety man finally got him, after eluding another blocker.

The point is, a block cannot be put on a defender until a pass play is completed, but ever so often a team pulls it and gets away with it. Sometimes it means a ball game.

I have been arguing with folks recently as to who is responsible for breaking the rules, the players or the coaches.

And it's probably done, for the most part, by the players in the heat of a game and quite unintentionally. Nevertheless, officials ought to catch such things, for it works a tremendous hardship on the victimized team.

Hidden Ball Trick I look back on the famous Vanderbilt hidden ball trick, connected during the Commodore reign of Ray Morrison, and I often wonder if this play wasn't altogether illegal. The tackle who finally had the ball, for instance, was on one knee when he retrieved it from between the haunches of the guard, Baby Ray.

The rules say that when a player in possession of the ball touches the ground with a knee, the ball automatically is dead. But the tackle ran on, unhindered, to score.

The new rules say a ball may be handed forward, but there has been no change in the matter of where a passer must stand. He must be at least five yards back of the line of scrimmage.

It often happens, especially on running passes, that a passer, failing to spot receiver quickly and deciding at the last second not to run, turns the ball loose at or beyond the line of scrimmage.

It is a bit difficult for officials to catch this one, since the linemen have moved on away from there. And yet the head linesman certainly ought to realize that the passer was well beyond the designated five-yard zone.

Oh, well, we're all human. And in addition to making mistakes, we're going to pick flaws in our fellow men who also stub their toes. That's human nature.

For Home Forces Judgment, and not sentiment, dictates that this corner stick with the home forces Saturday. I look for the Georgia Tech team to get even for last year's setback against Kentucky, and it won't surprise me a bit if Georgia has as much as a two-touchdown edge on Florida.

I say this, while admitting that Tom Lieb personally scouted the Bulldogs. In fact, I am not sure that Lieb's personal scouting is any better than Sam McAllister's. Sam was with him and Sam's a fine scout in his own right.

Georgia has every reason to be up for the game. The 'Gators sort of manhandled the Bulldogs last year. The game was a bit more one-sided than the 18-14 score reveals, it was a case of the invaders from Athens being flat.

This is another year. The Bulldogs are a better team

45,000 To View Tulane's Test With Alabama

Texas Plays Baylor; Minnesota Expected To Get by Nebraska.

By Bill Boni.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Tack a football frenzy onto a national defense boom, and you have a picture—a very confused picture, if it is to be a true one—of the city of Baltimore on the eve of the Navy-Notre Dame football game.

A statistician figured out the other day that defense industries have brought a quarter of a million people into this city in recent months. Tomorrow the 15th meeting of the Midshipmen and the Irish, each this time undefeated though once tied, will pack 66,000 people in Municipal Stadium, and fully half of those will be from out of town.

Adding to the glamor is the fact that Navy, for once, is the favorite. The Sailors have beaten Notre Dame three times during their series, but on each of those occasions their victories were considered upsets. They're not given much of an edge for tomorrow, but get what little there is.

Into action with the Midshipmen and the Irish go two other major undefeated but tied elevens (Army and Mississippi State), and the six all-winning elevens (Texas, Minnesota, Fordham, Duke, Texas A. and M. and Duquesne). This corner tabs all of them to come through with Navy, for the following possibly misguided reasons (home team first, probable attendance in parentheses):

Notre Dame (66,000)—Notre Dame needs a clear day for the passes of Sophomore Angelo Bertelli, and the weatherman's word with them. But the Midshipmen have two big fast lines to disrupt Bertelli's protection, a powerful running game and for one of the few times in the series have a man-power edge. Navy.

Minnesota-Nebraska (45,000)—Even with Bruce Smith on crutches, the Gophers should be able to get by this one. Minnesota.

Baylor-Texas (14,000)—The Steers may try to match Texas A. and M.'s 48-0 count. Texas.

Pitt-Fordham (20,000)—Little hope for the Panthers' single backfield line. Special Delivery Jones, against the Rams' eight horsemen. Fordham.

Tulane-Alabama (45,000)—Keeping up with Tulane is like trying to maintain your balance on a see-saw. Out of a state of utter confusion, Tulane.

Southern California-Stanford (30,000)—In a conference where every other team has lost at least two games, the Indians look better and better. Stanford.

Harvard-Army (50,000)—Under Earl Black, Dartmouth always beat the Crimson. Now that Black's at West Point, he may have taken the charm with him, since Dartmouth didn't beat Harvard this year. Army.

Texas A. and M.—Southern Methodist (25,000)—The Mustangs were slaughtered so badly by Texas, there may not be much rebound in them, if there is, watch out—but still, A. and M. is the choice.

Auburn-Mississippi State (15,000)—State may be heading for trouble, yet gets the nod.

Ohio State-Wisconsin (30,000)—On manpower, Ohio State.

Cornell-Yale (18,000)—Another sad day for Eli. Cornell.

Northwestern-Indiana (30,000)—In the battle of the sophomores, Graham vs. Hillenbrand, Northwestern appears to have much more to back up its boy.

Louisiana State-Mississippi (25,000)—Ole Miss isn't the same team that lost to Georgetown in its opener. Mississippi.

Penn-Columbia (20,000)—Despite the Lion's roar of Cornell, picking better-manned Penn to bounce back from that loss to Navy.

Illinois-Iowa (25,000)—Iowa, with Bill Green probably leading the way.

California-Washington (45,000)—By the pin-sticking system. California.

State-Syracuse (18,000)—The Orange, beaten only once, is angling for a bowl bid. State's always been tough, but hasn't seen the "V." Syracuse.

Purdue-Michigan State (15,000)—Purdue.

New York U.-Missouri (15,000)—More trouble for the Violets. Missouri with ease.

Oklahoma-Iowa State (20,000)—The Sooners are Missouri's main Big Six threat, and this should be a soft touch for them. Oklahoma.

Princeton-Dartmouth (30,000)—An edge on offense to Dartmouth.

Georgia Tech-Kentucky (18,000)—Tech-Arkansas (20,000)—Arkansas seems on the way up.

Florida-Georgia (22,000)—Sinkwich gives Georgia the nod.

Temple-Villanova (30,000)—Temple to boomers from that Boston beating.

Here in there elsewhere: East-Boston College over Wake Forest. West Virginia over Kansas. Holy Cross over Brown. Manhattan over Boston U. Georgetown over Maryland. Rutgers over Lafayette.

Midwest-Detroit over Marquette. Kansas State over South Carolina. Oklahoma A. and M. over St. Louis. Tulsa over North Dakota. Texas Tech over Creighton.

Maroons Risk Unbeaten Record Against Tigers

Jack Meagher Says He Expects Team To Give Good Account of Itself at Legion Field.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Unbeaten Mississippi State held its final workout here today in preparation for another effort to conquer the Auburn Tigers, jinx gridiron foe, tomorrow at Legion field.

The State eleven was a 2-to-1 choice in the betting, but Maroon supporters frankly were wary of the Auburn eleven, despite its four losses.

They point to the result of Auburn-State games since the series was resumed in 1937, when Coach Jack Meagher's eleven pounded out a 33-7 victory over a favored team from Mississippi on the same gridiron to be used tomorrow.

In 1938 Auburn won, 20 to 6, and in 1939, the Tigers took a 7-0 decision. Last year, playing in October, Auburn drove 73 yards in the last "five minutes" for a touchdown and a 7-7 tie, the only blot on an otherwise perfect season for the Maroons.

Captain Bill Arnold, 212-pound tackle for the State team, said: "We are prepared for the scrap of our lives, and expect it." The Mississippi club is in good shape except for Charlie Yancey, regular fullback, out with a broken jaw.

Auburn's chances were brightened by the probability that Clarence Harkins, triple-threat left halfback, would return to duty after three weeks' absence because of injuries. Harkins is rated the best runner and passer on the Tiger squad.

Meagher indicated he was not conceding anything with the pregame statement that his team "has continued to show improvement, and we look for a typical Auburn-State game tomorrow."

An attendance of 15,000 was indicated by advance ticket sales.

Tech 'B' Team Is Beaten 13-7 By Naval Club

Ex-Texas, Michigan Stars Lead Pensacola To Win at Albany.

ALBANY, Ga., Nov. 7.—An elusive back who made last year's headlines for the University of Texas, shifty Neil Puett, sparked his Pensacola Naval Station football mates to a 13-7 victory over Georgia Tech's "B" squad here this afternoon in a gridiron aerial display.

The Pensacola Fliers kept to their natural element, the air, all afternoon, completing 11 of 19 passes for a total of 130 yards.

But it was Puett and a running mate, Paul Kromer, who last year alternated with Tommy Harmon at Michigan, who provided the thrills for 3,500 fans at Albany's municipal stadium.

In the fourth quarter, with Tech's Baby Yellow Jackets leading, 7 to 6, Puett shook off tacklers or a delayed run through center and scampered 43 yards for a touchdown.

Navy drew first blood in the contest in the second quarter when Kromer's pass to Puett went 44 yards for a score. The try for point failed.

Tech drew ahead in the third period when McDonald, a big and fast back, climaxed a 41-yard ground march with a 3-yard plunge over guard into pay dirt. Cogburn added the point.

Crippled Tide Is Cheered By 5,000 Rabid Rooters

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Nov. 7.—(AP)—An inspired Alabama football squad, including every able man who has played in a varsity game this year, left this afternoon on an "all-out" invasion of New Orleans, La. The only absentee from the party is Senior Fullback Paul Spencer, who will remain here in a hospital for treatment of a severe charley horse.

Coach Frank W. Thomas said this morning that all players, save Spencer, will be in uniform at the Sugar Bowl stadium Saturday to battle Tulane. However, Joe Domnanovich, center, and Noah Langdale, tackle, will be out of the starting lineup because of injuries.

The squad received a tremendous demonstration last night at a mammoth pep rally attended by more than 5,000 persons in Denny stadium. Coaches Thomas and Drew addressed the gathering and expressed confidence that the team will play its heart out against Tulane. Thomas said the team's physical condition was not the best but that spirit could not be excelled. He conceded that Tulane has been favored before in this game, when the results were not in favor of the Green Wave.

Alabama spirit committee leaders said a Tide parade will be staged on Canal street in New Orleans at 10 a. m. Saturday, with the million-dollar band leading the procession. Last night's rally was concluded with a fireworks display.

Negro Elevens Hold Interest In Battle Here

Two bitter traditional rivals will battle it out this afternoon for gridiron supremacy when the football elevens of Morehouse and Clark College meet in their annual grudge game at 2 o'clock on Harper's field, West Hunter street.

It is the outstanding game here among Negro teams and each year the two local rivals battle before one of the largest crowds of the season.

Old graduates of Clark College are pouring into the city to celebrate the annual homecoming of the institution. The day has been designated as Cardinal and Black day, and a large parade will accompany Carol Stanton, the elected queen of the day, to the stadium. Bands of both schools will be in the parade, which will go down Chestnut street into Hunter and down Hunter to the playing field.

Enthusiasm for this battle has surpassed any other ever offered in a football game here. The students are priming their warriors for battle like never before, and one of the hardest and most bitter conflicts of the year is predicted.

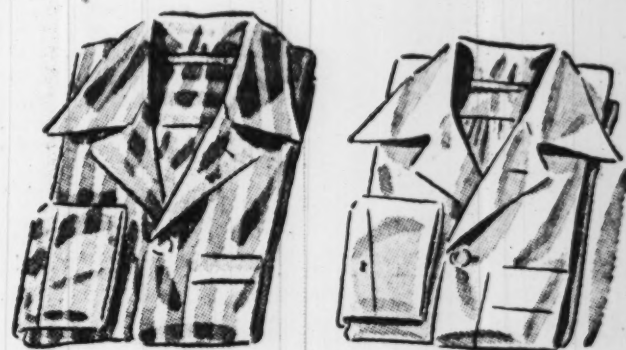

Both coaches tapered off training for the contest late Friday afternoon and announced their charges ready.

Fast Wildcats May Get Going At Grant Field

Johnny Bosch To Start; 18,000 Expected To See Game Here.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY, Assistant Sports Editor.

Georgia Tech and Kentucky clash on Grant Field today at 3 o'clock with nothing at stake, not even a brown jug or cowbell, and before it's over there may be a lot of folks sorry they gave the Wildcats and 13 points.

The Yellow Jackets have been installed favorites with some giving as many as 13 points. But from here, these odds look a bit out of line.

The game may well develop into a thriller. Kentucky has lost two games, one to Vanderbilt and another to Alabama. Tech has been defeated three times—by Notre Dame, Vandy and Duke. The Cats are always after the Jackets and may be expected to play their best game of the season. Therefore, the odds look just a bit out of line.

If Tech's line plays as well as it did against Duke, Kentucky is expected to take to the air. And therein, if you are one of the expected 18,000, you will have an opportunity to see one of the best line plays in the business—Ermal Allen, veteran 155-pound halfback of the Wildcats.

GOOD PASSERS. Allen and his understudy, Phil Cutchin, are both top-notch hurlers and will be a serious threat to the Jacket pass defense, which, incidentally, hasn't been any too brilliant this fall.

Tech's hopes for victory based on a great offensive line, the neat running by Davey Eldredge and Pat McHugh, the passing of Johnny Bosch and Bobby Sheldon and the hard line plunging of Ralph Plaster and Bobby Dodd. However, if practices this week failed to develop a scoring punch so badly lacking in the Duke game, the Jackets might spend the afternoon marching up and down between the 20-yard line.

Bosch will start the game at left half for the Jackets and he may or may not finish it. He has a chronic knee injury which may force him out at any time. If he has to leave the game, Sheldon will take over and Tech's offense will slow down as the latter lacks Bosch's poise and experience.

PORTWOOD TO PLAY. Kentucky's chances for victory took a sudden upturn when it was announced that Bill Portwood, pass-smagging end who suffered a back injury against Alabama last week, probably will start. The elongated sophomore took part in the final Wildcat scrimmage and came through with flying colors.

Seagram keeps the TOUGHNESS OUT ... blends extra PLEASURE IN

The FIVE CROWNS have rolled him out neatly And here's why—to put it concretely: He's TOUGHNESS personified. Seagram makes bona-fide Efforts to out him completely.

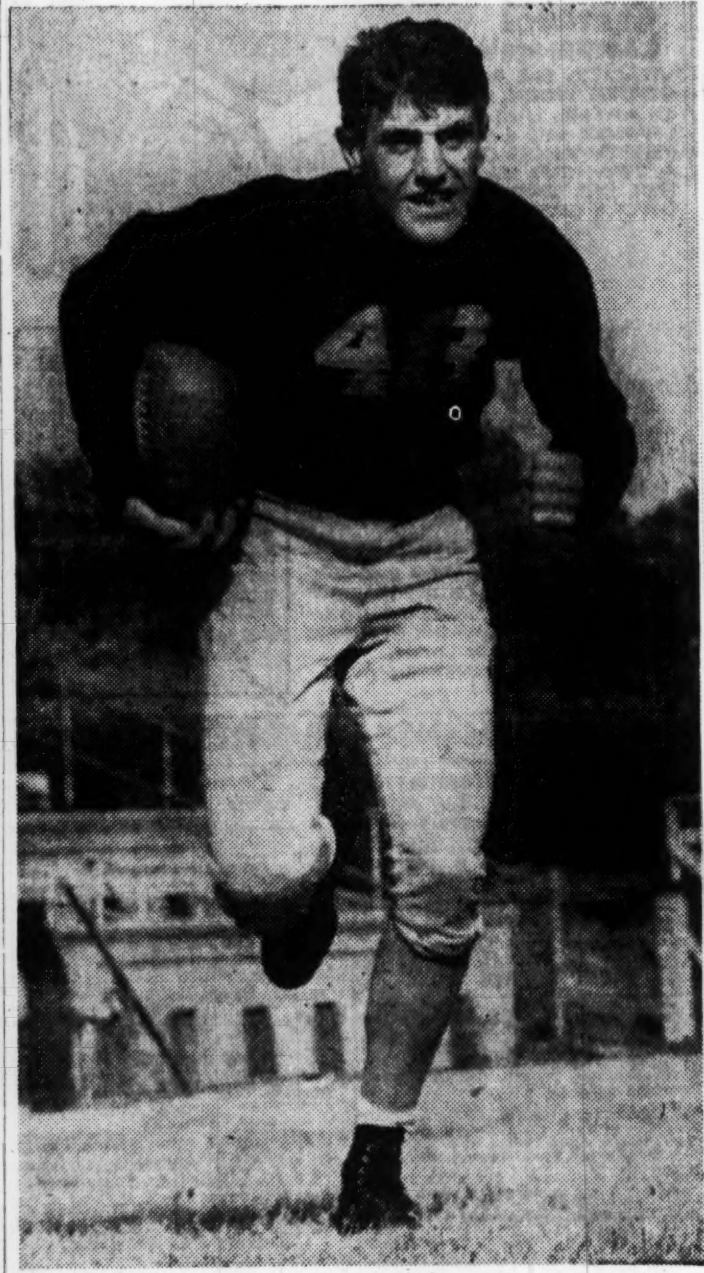

Yes, in 5 Crown, all TOUGHNESS is ended. And our stocks have been skillfully blended To give EXTRA Measure Of smoothness and PLEASURE—For good taste, our 5's recommended.

Seagram's 5 Crown

SAY SEAGRAM'S... AND BE SURE!

Seagram's 5 Crown Blended Whiskey, 86.6 Proof. (Since Sept. 1st) 72 1/2% grain neutral spirits. Seagram-Distillers Corp. N.Y.

ALLEN'S UNDERSTUDY—Here is Phil Cutchin, Kentucky halfback who replaces Ermal Allen in the lineup. Allen is one of the country's best passers and Cutchin is rated right behind him. Both will be in action against Georgia Tech this afternoon at Grant field.

West Fulton Petrels Beat In 39-0 Rout Georgia State Of Richardson In 53-0 Rout

STATESBORO, Ga., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The Oglethorpe Petrels crushed Georgia State Teachers' College today, 53-0. The Petrels scored quickly in the first quarter and thereafter they had easy sailing.

Halfback Tosches scored four of Oglethorpe's eight touchdowns, none of which came on extremely long runs. The longest were 27 yards on a pass from Waller to Tosches, 24 yards on a pass from Floyd to Link and 18 yards on Mann's run.

The Teachers failed to reach scoring position. They were led by Mize and Timms on defense and Gatewood on offense.
